Blocks Payment On 'Hot Mix' Contracts

JUDGE TERMS PAVING JOBS FRAUD ON OHIO

Order Restrains Payment Of $100,000 To Contractors For Road Projects.

RAPS ADMINISTRATION

Decision Charges Highway Department Conspired With 'Hot Mix' Group.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—A court order restraining payment of $100,000 to "hot mix" highway contractors was granted today by Common Pleas Judge Henry L. Scarlett, whose 30-page decision criticized highway department administration and termed the award of "hot mix" contracts during the last three years as "a fraud upon the state."

The court held that state highway department officials had conspired with "hot mix" contractors to restrict competition on state work and to pay excessive prices for materials.

Stifled Competition.

"At least some of the defendant members of the state highway department did knowingly aid and abet . . . in restricting and stifling competition and in securing excessive prices for hot mixed materials and improvements during the years 1935, 1936 and 1937, to the very great damage of the state of Ohio and its taxpayers," Judge Scarlett's decision read.

The decision followed filing of a series of taxpayers' suits against the highway department and members of a "hot mix" contractors' organization.

Payment of about $100,000 owed to contractors by the state will be withheld until the taypayer's suit, filed by Mrs. Agnes B. Dickinson of Columbus, is finally settled. The judge agreed to allow payment on certain projects now in construction where a restraining order would stop work and block highways.

The suits were filed after the Ohio state graft investigating committee had produced evidence that the state paid exorbitant prices

House Votes to Buy 500 Copies Of Probe Report

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — The house of representatives had voted today to have printed 500 copies of the report of Governor Davey's highway board of inquiry, made public early this week, which criticized administration of the highway department.

Republican Leader William M. McCulloch introduced the resolution authorizing the house clerk to pay for the printing, and only four Democrats voted against it, although many shouted objections when the resolution first was read.

The objectors quieted down when Democratic Leader Bishop Kilpatrick said: "This report is public and I see no objection whatever to the resolution."

McCulloch said copies of the report should be made available to senator and representatives because "the information it contains may result in saving thousands of dollars to the taxpayers."

MYSTERY CLEARS

4-Year-Old N. Y. Slaying Solved by Confessions.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The mysterious four-year-old slaying of William Snyder, a crime that devloped into a political issue last fall, appeared today to have been solved by the pleas of guilty of Morris and William (Wolfie) Goldis, brothers.

Merris Goldis, a studious-looking man of 28, was said by the district attorney's office to have admitted before a grand jury last week that he was the "trigger man" in the killing.

Bittinger In Line for Ohio Relief Post

Indicted Ashlander to Be Appointed by Davey, Capital Hears.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Failure of enough house members to report for a noon session threatened today to delay enactment of a poor relief program until next week. Only 60 members answered the first call of the house while 92 votes would be required for adoption of conference reports on two key bills remaining for action.

J. Freer Bittinger, of Ashland, former speaker of the Ohio House, and recently indicted on a charge of accepting illegally from a civil service employe a contribution to Gov. Davey's third term campaign, is being considered by the governor for appointment to the newly created post of state relief director. Associated Press dispatches from Columbus indicated today as the legislature prepared to pass a relief program.

Bittinger would receive a recess appointed, it was reported, since the senate probably will not return to the capitol for a working session this summer.

The governor a year ago appointed Bittinger to the state industrial commission, but the senate refused to confirm the selection. He has since been attached to the governor's office as a political assistant.

Night-Long Session.

Meanwhile an all-night legislative session ended at about 4 a. m. today without final enactment of a relief program, but only house acceptance—regarded as virtually certain—of a compromise on the financing bill remained to finish the job.

The house recessed until noon because not enough members remained to insure the required 92 favorable votes for passage while the senate, its work cleaned up, left the capitol after voting to adjourn finally July 8.

The relief program was estimated to provide from state relief taxes about $7,200,000 for 24 needy counties this year, borrowing 80 per cent against 1939-41 revenues. Local communities will be required to match these grants, dollar for dollar.

These bills provided for issuing notes against delinquent taxes, anticipating 1939 liquor and beer permit fees and appropriating for relief unclaimed deposits in liquidated banks.

BOOST DEFENSE

Chinese Rushing Troops To Hankow Battle Zone.

SHANGHAI—(INS)—Heavy Chinese reinforcements rushed to the Matang area of the Yangtze river valley today to attempt to halt the relentless Japanese advance against Hankow.

Bitter fighting was reported in progress, and the Japanese claimed they dominated all the Matang fortifications surrounding the southern end of the boom which had been thrown across the river to impede their warships.

Previously, it was reported that the Nipponese forces had penetrated the boom at Matang, and that retreating Chinese troops had constructed another one a few miles up the river.

Meanwhile, from Hankow, came frequent Chinese claims that numerous Japanese warships have been sunk in the past 48 hours.

"But as for Me, Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death!"

". . . Is life so dear or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! COUNCIL TO GET BUDGET FOR '39

$440,847 Measure, Approved By Committee, Comes Up For Final OK Tuesday.

The tentative city budget for 1939 asking a total of $440,847, approved by the finance committee, will be turned over to city council for final action at the regular July meeting Tuesday.

Of the total, $310,407 is asked for 1939 operating expenses, approximately $27,000 less than was asked last year and $18,000 more than was appropriated.

In addition to the general fund request, the budget stipulates $130,450 for bond retirement and interest.

The budget does not make any provisions for the administration of poor relief during 1939, and it is expected that this figure will be tacked on later if the 2-mill relief levy is voted on favorably at the August primaries.

Little discussion on the measure is anticipated in council, and it is expected to go to the county budget commission virtually unchanged. The commission, however is expected to whittle it.

Council will also be asked to approve final legislation authorizing the improvement of McPherson street from Lawndale avenue to Howard street by the construction of curbs and gutters and the paving of the roadway.

Mrs. Moody Climaxes Net Comeback With 8th Title

Defeats Arch-Rival, Helen Jacobs, 6-4, 6-0, In Finals of All-England Tourney; Foe Plays Despite Injury.

(By United Press)

WIMBLEDON, Eng.—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody climaxed one of the finest comebacks in sports history today when she crushed her arch-rival, Helen Jacobs, 6-4, 6-0, in the finals of the All-England tournament to become the first woman in history to become an eight-time winner of the Wimbledon title.

Mrs. Moody reasserted her right to the title "Queen of the Courts" by literally blasting her sister Californian to bits with the power and precision of her shots. Except in the early games of the opening set, Miss Jacobs never had a chance with the woman who won her first Wimbledon championship as long ago as 1927.

Miss Jacobs Injured.

After taking the first set in fairly easy fashion, Mrs. Moody lifted her game to concert pitch in the second and, as Miss Jacobs withered, blazed through the six games with the loss of only three points. Miss Jacobs injured an ankle in this set and limped perceptibly as she ran for Mrs. Moody's crossfire of winners.

Mrs. Moody, who was badly beaten in pre-tournament play by players not of her class, was given little chance at Wimbledon when the fortnight of play started. But slowly and surely, and with the same quiet deliberation which has marked her play since she started on the courts of California years ago, she worked on her game.

Bit by bit the accuracy and the power of her strokes returned, until today, at 32, she was an unbeatable machine.

Mrs. Moody's victory today marked the 11th time she has beaten Miss Jacobs in 12 matches. Miss Jacobs' only win came in the final round of the national championships at Forest Hills in 1933 when Mrs. Moody defaulted in the final set because of an injured back.

Miss Jacobs was sorely troubled by her ankle injury in the second set, but she stuck it out to the end.

BUYS BALLOTS

Election Board Lets Contract To Wickersham On Low Bid.

Contract for printing 78,015 ballots for the Aug. 9 primary election in Richland county was awarded last night to the Wickersham Printing company, Mansfield, on its low bid of $399.32.

The county election board considered six bids, ranging from $399 to $868, at a session last night at the courthouse.

Other bids were: Rickets and Nichols, $561; Richland Printing company, $485; Lindeman and Almy, $576; Mansfield Printing company, $620; and Bellville Star, $868.

Included in the contract are 21,225 Democratic ballots containing the names of county, district and state candidates; 18,225 Republican ballots including the same offices; 23,525 ballots for the Madison township relief levy; 20,475 for the Mansfield relief levy, and 4,575 for a waterworks bond issue at Shelby.

HENDAYE, French-Spanish Frontier—(U.P.)—Spanish Loyalists admitted losing the towns of Bechi, Vertice Solach, Vertice Lagoleta and Los Malles on the eastern front today, but asserted that they later recaptured Los Malles.

The Loyalist Spanish press agency reported eight civilians killed and 14 wounded in a Nationalist airplane raid on coastal villages.

NO CLEVELAND GAME

CHICAGO (INS)—Wet grounds today caused the second postponement of the opening game in the series between the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox.

Interference, Incompetence Charged in School Board Row

Members of the Union board of education in Weller and Franklin township denied today that politics played any part in their move to oust Boyd Robinson as superintendent of Richland county schools and asserted that his competence to fill the office is the sole issue.

Supt. Robinson and Neil S. Robinson, Madison township member of the county board, had accused the Union board and two members of the county board of "playing politics" when they requested the superintendent's resignation at a meeting last week.

The ouster move was based on accusations of members that Supt. Robinson had usurped the authority of the Union board in submitting an application for $96,000 in PWA funds for a proposed $200,000 high school building in Weller township.

In a written statement today, Ralph M. Osbun, president of the Union board, said: "We only ask for justice and fairness. We ask for the opportunity as the elected representatives of our school district to operate our schools without being compelled to work under a school official who interfer with our school program in a manner which we believe to be irregular and detrimental."

Asserting that he believes Robinson "incompetent for the office of county superintendent," Osbun added that "we cannot have confidence in a school official who has signed documents which contain resolutions said to have been adopted by our board when we

Monday's Celebration To Be Most Extensive In Years If Weatherman Behaves.

AFFAIR AT FAIRGROUND

Program Opening At 1 P. M. Highlighted By Cavalcade And Fireworks Display.

The stage was all set today for Mansfield to celebrate the Fourth of July in a new, elaborate and entirely same manner — the weather permitting.

However, the weather forecast today wasn't particularly promising, for local thundershowers are predicted for this area tonight, Sunday and Monday.

Business and industry will close as usual for the week-end double holiday. The number of persons leaving the city, however, will be smaller than in former years, partially because the number of traffic fatalities each year but chiefly because of the big celebration which will be staged at the Fairground Monday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Mansfield Public Parks association.

The complete program for Mansfield's July Fourth celebration will be found on Page 3 of today's News-Journal.

Hinges on Weather.

The entire program depends upon the weather and in case of rain, it will be postponed until next Saturday.

Probably never in Mansfield's history has a community celebration been arranged which represented so complete a cross-section of the city as that which will be presented Monday.

The celebration, which commemorates the 162nd anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, will begin at 1 p. m. and continue until 10:30 with one intermission of 45 minutes, starting at 6 p. m.

Varied Afternoon Program.

The afternoon will be given over to the Playground groups, Boy and Girl Scouts, nationality groups, community organizations, daylight fireworks and harness

DON'T SPEAK

Barbara, Count Stay Apart In London, Awaiting Hearing.

LONDON—(INS)—Separated by only two miles of London rooftops, but refraining from all communication, the former Barbara Hutton, Woolworth heiress, and her estranged husband, Count Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow, planned today to spend the week-end here.

The American-born countess, like her husband, was expected to continue consultations with legal advisers regarding strategy to be used in Tuesday's court hearing of the charges she has made against the count.

In yesterday's hearing in Bow street police court, the count denied he had threatened his wife with injury. He was released in $10,000 bond after promising he would not carry a revolver or attempt to see his wife or their two-year-old son, Lance, during the period of his remand.

3 NEAR DEATH, 12 OTHERS HURT IN 8-HOUR PERIOD

Appalling Toll Takes Lives of Infant and Chauffeur in 3-Car Crash on Ashland Road; 13 Cars Involved In Epidemic of Accidents.

The city came to the eve of a July Fourth holiday with an appalling traffic toll today, as the result of a series of accidents all of which occurred within the brief period of eight hours last evening.

Two were dead, and fear was expressed at General hospital for the lives of three others.

In all, six accidents occurred in and near Mansfield last night. The two dead were Clevelanders. The three lying at death's door in the General hospital were also from Cleveland.

Seven others are in the hospital, less seriously injured and five others have been treated for minor injuries. Thirteen others escaped without injuries.

Thirteen motor vehicles were involved in the almost unprecedented epidemic of traffic accidents in the Mansfield area.

The first of two accidents which occurred within the space of three hours on U. S. route 42, two miles north of Mansfield, during a blinding rainstorm, involved three cars in which an infant and a 48-year-old chauffeur lost their lives. Seven others were injured, three seriously, in the collision that occurred at 4:30 p. m.

The force of the impact threw the occupants from the cars.

More than 1,000 motorists crowded the heavily travelled highway and traffic was almost at a standstill for two hours while state highway patrolmen and sheriff's deputies augmented by Mansfield police worked to clear away the debris and untangle the traffic.

Four ambulances, sirens screaming, roared through the heavy evening traffic with their cargo of battered humanity in trips to General hospital.

At the hospital, dramatic scenes likened to a war-time field hospital were unfolded as five physicians and a crew of nurses worked until near midnight to care for the injured.

Some were treated in the corridors on hurriedly set up emergency cots as doctors cared for the most seriously injured in the crowded emergency room.

At noon today State Highway Patrolman D. D. Nicholas, who investigated the accident, was still without the exact details because

AGING VETS SEE 2-HOUR PARADE

3,000 Regular Army Troops March Before Survivors Of Civil War Days.

(By Associated Press)

GETTYSBURG, Pa. — Three thousand regular army troops and hundreds of gayly uniformed legionnaires and drum and bugle corps gathered beneath overcast skies on this historic battlefield today to "strut their stuff" for the wearers of the blue and gray.

Veterans of all the nation's wars and 30 uniformed musical organizations of patriotic groups assembled for the three-mile long procession (at 1:30 p. m. EST) before the 2,000 aged Civil war veterans and state dignitaries, sitting in canopied stadium stands.

The two-hour military and musical parade and a speaking program tonight were a prelude to the appearance tomorrow of President Roosevelt at this last joint reunion of the blue and gray on the 75th anniversary of the great battle.

Standing on a hill overlooking the rolling battlefield, the president will dedicate the $60,000 "eternal light" peace memorial, erected as an inspiration and "challenge to noble endeavor of a young and hopeful America."

As the sun sinks behind the Blue Ridge mountains, a flame will be lighted atop the 55-foot shaft to burn "forever" as a symbol of "peace eternal in a nation united."

Later, army cavalrymen will ride in review on the ground where Pickett made his famous charge, while airplanes drone overhead and a 48-gun salute is fired to the nation.

Roosevelt Invites Sawyer to Join Him on Trans-Ohio Train

What was interpreted as the first indication of the part President Roosevelt will play in the Ohio Democratic primary came from Hyde Park today.

International News Service dispatches to The News-Journal said that Charles Sawyer, who is opposing Gov. Martin L. Davey for the Ohio Democratic gubernatorial nomination, had been invited to board the presidential train at Marietta next Friday, and travel with the president and Mrs. Roosevelt across the state.

The presidential party leaves Washington on a tour of the nation Thursday, and is to speak in Marietta at a Nohtwest territory celebration.

Mr. Roosevelt's invitation to Sawyer, who is also a Democratic national committeeman, was immediately construed by Sawyer backers as a bestowal of presidential blessing on his candidacy for governor. The invitation reached Sawyer at his Madison county farm.

Davey, seeking a third term, has often been at odds with the national administration.

The president stated last week in a radio talk to the nation that although he could not take part in state contests as president, he felt it was proper for him to express his choice among Democratic candidates as head of the Democratic party. His tour has been arranged so that he will speak in several states where New Deal supporters are faced with serious contests. Ohio is one of these, with Senator Robert Bulkley, considered a new Deal supporter, opposed for renomination by former Gov. George White, in addition to the Sawyer-Davey gubernatorial contest.

LOW ON CUT-OFF

Chillicothe Firm Submits Bid Of $252,000 On Rt. 42 Job

The W. H. Ringwald and Sons company, Chillicothe, was announced today as the low bidder on the paving of the Windsor cut-off on route 42 between Mansfield and Ashland. The Chillicothe firm submitted a bid of $252,057 on the project which had been estimated at $280,000.

Specifications of the state highway department call for grading, structures, roadside improvement and paving with reinforced concrete and brick of 3.59 miles of the highway.

While the state highway department considered bids on the project, $1,151 in state highway funds was deposited with Fred R. Zellner, Richland county clerk of courts, for easement fees on four properties along the Windsor cut-off right-of-way.

Owners of the properties who have refused to sign easement agreements must accept the funds or file an appeal within 10 days. The owners are Mary A. Painter, Anton Reiser, jr., Willard Hale and James W. McMillen.

Groups Reveal Fall Programs For Next Year

Dolly Madisons to Have Speakers: Audubons to Study Birds.

ALTHOUGH nearly all of the major study clubs and philanthropic groups of Mansfield have discontinued meetings during the summer months, members of program committees for most organizations have been working diligently preparing programs for their clubs during the fall and winter season.

One of the few organizations not disbanding for the warmer weather is the Dolly Madison club, a group given to political study and social meetings. The club will meet this month for a talk on flowers, but will omit August, resuming full activity in September.

Interesting programs planned include talks by E. C. Fuller, E. J. Wesson, John Correll, Miss Bertha Ruess, Meade K. Bates and Marshall Moore. The club has also arranged a Christmas and guest night party, a dinner-bridge and an amateur night affair.

Members of the Audubon society of Mansfield are planning a program of study for the fall and winter months. Most of the monthly programs of the group will be devoted to study of various birds and the discussion of their habitats and their habits. For the December meeting the group will have a party and in June members will have a picnic at Mohican state park.

Members of the program committee for the Dolly Madison club are Mrs. Emma Young, Mrs. Sylvia Coffman, Mrs. Marie Bell, Mrs. Louise Reese, Mrs. Clara McNamara and Mrs. Janet Lanerd. Those who made plans for the winter's events for the Audubon club are Mrs. Ralph E. Race, Mrs. H. C. McCutchan, Mrs. Fred Dippman and Mrs. C. M. Lutz.

Six Friends Give Wedding Shower

A recent bride and a bride-to-be were guests of honor at a party given recently at the home of Miss Martha Hall, Hedges street, by Miss Hall, Mrs. Dale Thrush, Mrs. Harper Price, Miss Ruth Zimmerman and Miss Virginia Oman. The honorees were Miss Mildred Mendlich who will be married July 7 and Mrs. Roy Henry, the former Miss Mildred Berg.

Hearts were played at three tables with Mrs. Adam Pakon and Mrs. George Berg winning prizes. These were presented to the two honor guests. Each honoree was presented with a gift from the hostesses. Luncheon was served at a long table decorated in a yellow and white color scheme.

Miss Mendlich and Guy Heffelfinger will be married early next Thursday morning at St. Peter's Catholic church.

Kathleen Sturges Hostess Friday

Miss Kathleen Sturges, Overlook road, entertained members of the Johnny Appleseed Garden club at luncheon at her home yesterday. Luncheon was served at a table centered with an old-fashioned arrangement of violas and baby's breath. Mrs. Tom Ford and Mrs. Charles Siegenthaler served.

Mrs. Henry Huston read a paper entitled, "Proper Watering of Trees, Flowers and Shrubbery," and also presented Mrs. W. B. Ford's paper, "Flowers Grown In Shady Spots." Miss Katherine Hartman, horticulture chairman, gave botanical terms. During the business meeting the club endorsed the plan to institute a non-partisan park board for all the Mansfield public parks.

Arrangements for the next meeting were not made, and the place and date will be announced later.

Two Papers Presented At Pavonia Garden Club

"Flower Enemies and How to Fight Them" and "Delphiniums" were the titles of papers presented by Mrs. Dale Ebberts and Mrs. Lee Hale at the meeting of the Pavonia Garden club when Mrs. Charles Kagey entertained Thursday. There were 15 present.

The social hour followed with Mrs. Glen Hout and Mrs. Charles Henery winning prizes. Mrs. Wesley Boals and Mrs. Ebberts served refreshments. The next meeting will be July 21 with Mrs. Howard Meyer.

Although amateurs often find it difficult to realize the fact, water is worth as much as fertilizer for producing roses at this season. One of the secrets of good rose growing is the use of water in liberal quantities, but always in the morning or early afternoon. Moisture allowed to form on the leaves in the evening is very likely to induce attacks of mildew.

NEAPOLITAN PUDDING — One tablespoon gelatin, one-fourth cup cold milk, one cup milk, two egg yolks one-half cup sugar one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one cup cream, whipped. Soak gelatin in cold milk. Scald second amount of milk and pour into egg yolks which have been beaten with sugar and salt. Cook over hot water until the custard coats the spoon, stirring constantly. Remove from stove, add gelatin, stirring it in thoroughly. Cook until mixture starts to thicken, then beat with a rotary beater until light. Fold in flavoring and whipped cream. Turn into individual molds or one large mold and chill until firm. When serving, remove from molds, and serve over it crushed and sweetened strawberries.

FLOWER ARRANGEMENT SUBJECT FOR PAPER

Mrs. Frank Forshee Hostess to Members of Cottage Garden Club; Mrs. A. C. Tuttle Named Horticulture Chairman.

FLOWER arrangements was the subject of the paper presented by Mrs. F. A. Greenwood yesterday at the meeting of the Cottage Garden club. Mrs. Frank Forshee, 37 Maple street, was hostess with Mrs. Frank Wendt assisting.

Mrs. Greenwood told the 19 members present that flower arrangements must be a composition design to express individuality. She explained that there are three major types of arrangement—the Japanese, the massed and the line. She also stressed the importance of using flowers on the table for all meals.

During the business meeting which preceded the luncheon, Mrs. Sherman Wentz, president, appointed Mrs. A. C. Tuttle horticulture chairman. Mrs. Tuttle will instruct the club members in botanical names and habits of flowers.

Mrs Greenwood, chairman of the committee of the Junior Garden club sponsored by the Cottage Garden club, reported that the group will meet on Monday of the same weeks that the senior club meets. The members will study trees.

Luncheon was served at a table decorated with a rose centerpiece. Mrs. T. T. Burns and Mrs C. H. Ferguson presided at the table. The next meeting will be an informal flower show and guest luncheon at the home of Mrs. R. R. Alexander, Shelby road, July 15. She will be assisted by Mrs. H. D. Smith and Mrs. J. B. Conard.

Bible Class Holds Monthly Session

Mrs. Della Stull, Louise avenue, was assisted yesterday by Mrs. P. M. Hoover and Mrs. Arthur Knapp when she entertained members of the Ladies Bible class of the Mayflower Congregational church. Guests of the group were Mrs. W. C. Neibarger and Miss Evelyn Mac Gresmer.

The business meeting was conducted by Miss Bertha Zudwitz, vice president, and readings were given by Mrs. Neibarger and Mrs Charles Althouse who both won prizes during the contests. Mrs. C. A. Cole was also a contest winner. The next meeting will be a picnic dinner at Johns park, August 3.

Mrs. M'Cullough Hostess For Woodville Meeting

Mrs. R. C. McCollough, South Main street road, assisted by Mrs Gideon Perry entertained members of the Woodville Social club yesterday. There were 19 members and three guests, Mrs. Donald Bowden, Mrs. Eckstein and Mrs. Harold Mast.

Games were played and plans were made to have a shower for Mr and Mrs Jack Yoha July 8 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ora Yoha. The next regular meeting will be August 5 with Mrs. Howard Mast.

Club Arranges Dinner-Dance, Golf Monday

Schedule First Affair for Tonight, Plan Other Events.

CONTINUING the policy started over the Memorial day week-end, Westbrook Country club will entertain today and Monday with two special social events for members. Tonight there will be a Fourth of July dinner-dance with Mr. and Mrs. N. O. Weamer in charge. A Cleveland orchestra, Jack McDonald's, has been signed for the affair.

Monday at 1:30 p. m. members will participate in a Scotch two-ball foursome. Foursomes will be arranged individually, according to Mr. and Mrs. William A. Springer who are in charge of the matches. Following the afternoon of golfing a buffet supper will be served at the club house and a Monte Carlo party will be held.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wilmore are in charge of the evening entertainment. Various games will be played with paper money and prizes will be awarded at the close of the evening, members of the committee announced.

In addition to the regularly scheduled golf matches a number of other social events have been planned for the remainder of July. The second in a series of Sunday afternoon musicales will be given July 10 and the July luncheon-bridge for the women is set for the 13th. Members of the Galion Drama Workshop will appear at the club in a group of plays July 16. The rest of the schedule includes a tea dance July 23, a buffet-bridge for the women July 27 and a dinner-bridge and party July 29.

Members Indorse Park Board Plan

Preceding the luncheon served to members of the Astowela Garden club, Mrs. Howard N. Keene conducted a business meeting during which members individually indorsed a proposal for a non-partisan park board for all the Mansfield parks. Luncheon was served to 24 members and guests at small tables decorated with pink roses. The guests were Mrs. R. C. Hoiles, Santa Ana, Cal., and Mrs. H. C. Finefrock.

The program included a talk on water lilies by Mrs. P. J. Kelley and a discussion of California flowers by Mrs. Hoiles. The next regular meeting will be July 15 at the home of Mrs. C. A. Hines with Mrs. H. G. Balyeat assisting. For yesterday's meeting Mrs. Neil Remy, West Third street, was hostess, assisted by Mrs. Dean Rex.

WILL ENTERTAIN.

Lee Sweeps To New Gains One Day, But His Invasion Falters As Pickett's Charge Fails

EDITOR'S NOTE—To make up for the lapse of a publishing day Monday, two installments of the day-by-day account of the battle of Gettysburg 75 years ago are printed herewith. The stories are written as though dispatched from the battlefield on the days during which the battle raged. They are the final dispatches of the series.

By DR. DOUGLAS S. FREEMAN

Hdqrs. Army of Northern Virginia, Chambersburg Pike, near Gettysburg, Pa., July 2, 1863 (10 P. M.)—Fifty thousand veteran infantry of the Southern Confederacy twice had victory assured today but, through delay and faulty coordination of attack,

Bulletin

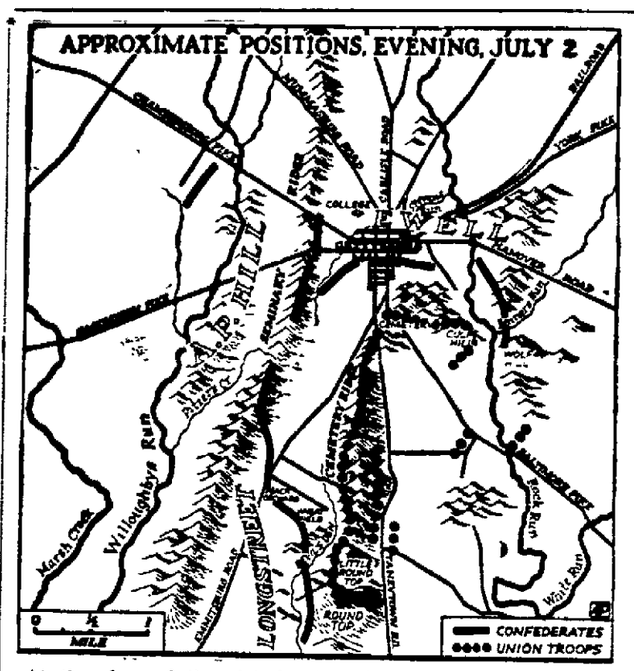
Headquarters, Army of the Potomac, Cemetery Ridge, near Gettysburg, Pa., July 2, 1863—The rebels attacked today and we have suffered losses on both flanks.

General Sickles, who had taken up an unauthorized position in advance of our general line on Cemetery Ridge, was violently attacked at four o'clock and driven behind the ridge. But General Warren brought up troops in time to drive back the southerners trying to seize the Round Tops, also on our left flank.

To bolster the left flank, our right had been weakened, and Ewell's corps, attacking late in the evening, broke into our position in the region of Culp's hill. He probably still holds some of our ground there.

But our latest news is that the rebels are checked.

they had to defer until tomorrow the final assaults on the Army of the Potomac.



At the close of the victorious battle yesterday, the information of Confederate headquarters was that only two Federal corps, the First and Eleventh, were on the hill south of Gettysburg. During the night General Ewell intercepted a dispatch, addressed to Major General H. W. Slocum, in which the statement was made that the Fifth Federal corps was four miles east of Gettysburg at 12:30 A. M. The Confederate staff concluded that, at daybreak, only two corps would be confronting Lee—the two that had been defeated yesterday—but that at least two additional corps would arrive during the early morning.

Battlefield a Fish-Hook.

It developed that General Lee, late in the evening, had decided to attack Cemetery Ridge early this morning, before the Federal reenforcements could arrive there. If he could gain that ridge he would be in rear of the high ground known as Cemetery Hill, which lies at the northern end of the ridge and overlooks Gettysburg.

The whole Federal position has the form of a fish-hook, the shank of which runs from south to north, bends at Cemetery Hill and reaches its northeastern "point" at Culp's Hill. Lee planned to seize the shank of the fish-hook.

At daylight, when General Lee examined the ground from Seminary Ridge, there was every reason to believe that this plan could be executed successfully. The Federals were in strength on Cemetery Hill but, so far as could be ascertained, they had not then occupied the ridge to the south of the hill.

Although an immediate attack by the First corps would have carried the Confederates straight to the crest of the ridge, General Longstreet did not have his troops in position for an advance. He is said to have opposed General Lee's plan for an assault and is believed to have contended for a movement that would turn the southern end of Cemetery Ridge. All his movements today were made with a slowness and a reluctance that surprised the army.

400 Feet From Victory.

Not until 4 o'clock was the attack delivered, principally by Hood's and McLaws' divisions of Longstreet's corps. The attack was delivered almost frontally against two rocky eminences known as Round Top and Little Round Top. Some valuable ground was gained though at considerable loss.

Farther up the shank of the fish-hook, Major General R. H. Anderson's division of the Third corps cooperated with Longstreet and assailed Cemetery Ridge directly from the west. Wright's Georgia brigade swept across the wide meadow that separates Seminary Ridge from the Federal position and actually reached the summit of the opposite ridge, but it had to fall back.

Perhaps the most substantial gains of the day on the Confederate right have been at a place known as Devil's Den and in a peach orchard

General Ewell had orders today to attack at the bend of the fish-hook when Longstreet assailed the shank. The veteran troops of the Second corps were ready, but when Early's division charged, Rodes was not in position to cooperate promptly. Before Rodes could climb the hill, Early was forced to retire.

Early got within 400 feet of the Federal batteries on Cemetery Hill and if he had been able to seize and to hold those guns, the Federals would have lost the stronghold of their artillery.

Sunday's Battle

Hdqrs. Army of Northern Virginia, Chambersburg Pike near Gettysburg, Pa., July 3, 1863 (11 P. M.)—In the greatest assault of this bloody war, the Army of North Virginia today failed to storm Cemetery Ridge. Its attacking column reached the heart of the Federal position and fell back to its original ground.

Early this morning, General Lee rode to the headquarters of the First corps and directed General Longstreet to prepare to assault Cemetery Ridge with all three divisions of his corps. When Longstreet insisted that McLaws and Hood were facing superior forces

Bulletin

Headquarters, Army of the Potomac, Cemetery Ridge, Gettysburg, Pa., July 3, 1863—We defeated the rebels this afternoon in a major engagement that raged from one o'clock until five.

It started with a heavy artillery bombardment that shelled out General Meade's headquarters and cost us heavily. Then as General Meade rode our lines along Cemetery Ridge on horseback, the South's infantry charged, apparently 20,000 strong, over a mile-wide front.

At one point the invaders crossed our breastworks but were beaten back in furious fighting.

With General Hancock wounded and commands badly mixed, General Meade has abandoned the idea of a counter-attack. The enemy is still on Seminary Ridge.

which would turn their flank if they moved up the line for an attack, General Lee agreed to leave Hood and McLaws where they were and to employ Pickett's fresh division of the First corps, together with Heth's division and part of Pender's division of the Third corps.

Big Guns Shake The Earth.

The morning hours were consumed in bringing Pender's troops three-quarters of a mile down the line, and in making ready the artillery. General Longstreet put in charge of his guns one of his battalion commanders, Colonel E Porter Alexander, who is accounted among the best artillerists in the Army of Northern Virginia Five guns of Poague's battalion, Third corps, also were put in advance. Some of these pieces were within 650 yards of the enemy, but part of the supporting artillery was at the extreme range of 1,400 yards.

Pickett Leads The Charge.

At 1 p. m., two signal guns were fire by Miller's battery. Instantly the bombardment began. Orders were to fire by salvoes, with the result that the simultaneous discharge of all the guns of a battery shook the earth. Teamsters three miles in the rear say the windows were shaken. The American continent has never been rocked by such a fire.

Half an hour after the bombardment began, Confederates saw some movement among the Federal artillerists in the "little clump of trees" on Cemetery Ridge that was the objective of the attack Colonel Alexander thought this meant the 18 Federal guns in the grove were withdrawing and he sent word to General Pickett, as directed by General Longstreet, to advance the troops over the ridge for the charge.

PICKETT'S CHARGE: Officer in center with hat on saber is Brigadier General Armistead, mortally wounded in this desperate climax of Lee's invasion.

Forty-seven regiments, about 15,000 men, soon were in the open. Nineteen of these were from Virginia, fourteen from North Carolina, seven from Alabama, four from Mississippi and three from Tennessee These included not only the regiments that were to make the charge but those that were to support it. In the combined force were regiments from every state east of the Mississippi.

Never was there a more gallant sight than when the advance began. The extreme left was held by Mayo's brigade in a single line. To the right of Mayo were two lines and, on the extreme right, the plan was that Armistead should follow Kemper, and Wilcox, Armistead.

"It's All My Fault."

The line went silently forward, part of it through the guns, and did not waver or waste a cartridge. As soon as it was within effective range, the Federal artillery opened on it from front and from flank. Still the formation was preserved until, at last, the whole force disappeared in the smoke and in the dust of exploding shell

Everyone on this side the line held his breath and listened. Now the Union artillery seemed to die down, as if the guns had been seized, now there was wild firing, now echoes of cheers. Then, after a few minutes, men appeared on the fringe of the smoke Some were wounded but some had the slow step of an unwilling retreat Behind them came the broken remnants of brigades As they came nearer their blackened ghastly faces told the tale; the charge had failed. Pickett's division had been destroyed; Heth's, led by the gallant Pettigrew, was but a ghastly shadow of itself

General Garnett has been killed. General Armistead was last seen on the ground, mortally wounded, with one hand on a Federal field piece General Kemper is so badly wounded that only his determination kept him alive.

General Lee was magnificent. As soon as he saw the men returning from the charge, he rode out to rally them with quiet words When he met General Pickett and heard that officer cry out that he had no division left him, he said: "Come, General Pickett, this has been my fight and upon my shoulders rests the blame."

To General Wilcox, who vainly sought to support the charge, Lee said: "Never mind, General, all this has been my fault—it is I that lost this fight, and you must help me out of it the best way you can."

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Dicky's stern query was so plausible that I was sure neither his offended mother nor Hank himself guessed that he was giving the boy a "way out" by suggesting an explanation of Hank's chuckle.

"I wasn't laughing at either Granzie or Bill," Hank stammered. "I just got to thinking about something that happened up at camp, and I just couldn't help snickering I'm awful sorry."

"You may well be," his grandmother informed him loftily "Nothing is more rude than to laugh at some joke of your own when people are talking But I'll forgive you this time, if you think you can remember not to offend that way again. Can you do that?"

With a murmured excuse, I left the table and dining room, moving leisurely until I was safely outside the dining room door Once there, I dashed upstairs and down the hall to the nursery suite

Talking to Doctor.

The nursery keys were safely in a concealed pocket in my gown, and, with a suddenly slow and noiseless movement, I unlocked the door and stole through to Katherine's own bed-sitting room where she was seated at her desk with the telephone held to her ear and mouth.

"I never can thank you enough, Doctor," she was saying "I will tell you when I see you what this means to me. Tomorrow at eleven, then. Thank you again. Good night"

She put the telephone down on its hook and turned to me, her face filled with pardonable triumph

"'Eureka' and all the other slogans!" she caroled softly, mindful of Faith sleeping in the nursery adjoining. "Do you know who that was?" she went on, and answered her own query forthwith. "None other than Dr. — " naming the man who was distinctly the first in his line in the city

"How in the world did you manage to get him?" I asked

Got Him at Club.

"I'm not quite sure, even now," she said with a smile "It was impossible to reach him at first My arm is almost paralyzed holding that dratted receiver At last I ran him down at his club I expected him to annihilate me, but he was wonderful. He told me he could change one patient's time by notifying her early in the morning and could put Hank in her place

"Marvelous indeed, miracle worker," I told her "But for now, put the triumph aside, and come down to dinner"

"I think you might," I retorted dryly. We hurried down to the dining room where Dicky and the boys sprang up to greet us. But I saw that Mother Graham's nod of greeting to Katherine held a recurrence of her 'martyr complex,' and I guessed the reason instantly when I saw that the tomato cocktail glasses had not yet been removed

"You haven't had your soup yet!" I exclaimed in simulated, astonished reproof. Why not?"

"You surely did not expect us to eat until you returned," my mother-in-law said

I uttered a meek, innocuous, "I'm so sorry." Then I touched the bell for Katie, who hurried in with her face also mirroring martyrdom, in her case that of a good cook who sees her viands spoiled because of the tardiness of the diners

The rest of the dinner went on smoothly, except that I noticed Hank growing a bit restive under Dicky's ostentatiously furtive watchfulness of him, something which I knew my husband was purposely staging in order to give plausibility to his quizzing of the boy But it was not until coffee had been served in the living room and Katie had departed that he went to work in earnest

Begins Inquisition.

"Hank, have you been perfectly well this last year at school?" he asked suddenly 'Or have there been times when you haven't felt quite up to things?'

"Why! I've been pretty well, sir, most of the time Sometimes I have had little sick spells, but they didn't last long I think I'm in pretty good shape, though."

"Little sick spells, eh? What were your symptoms — headache, dizziness, a feeling that you just couldn't face the day?"

Hank's eyes brightened

"Yes, that's just the way I felt."

Dicky considered him gravely.

"And what time of day did these attacks come on, in the morning or evening?"

"Mostly in the morning, sir," and when I saw Dicky's lips twitch again, I feared that Hank might realize that his uncle was "taking him for a ride." But the next instant Dicky was a stern inquisitor.

"Hank, do you ever have black spots before your eyes?" he asked.

HEART ON HER SLEEVE

CHAPTER X

"Dad," Mignon hugged him rapturously, "I thought you weren't coming back till tomorrow night. This is a nice surprise!"

The district attorney kissed his daughter, and stepped back for a better look at Moleen.

"Well, young lady," the fine lines at the corners of his brown eyes crinkled, "you have certainly changed! I never would have known you."

"She's gained eight pounds," Mignon said proudly.

"You've grown very beautiful," Laine said, nodding his white head approvingly. "And that's the way I like to see all little girls grow."

"Dad's an awful old flatterer," Mignon laughed affectionately. "He tells all the girls and old ladies that. But this time I think he really means it, Molly."

"It's the politician in me," the district attorney grinned. "The same urge that impels me to go around kissing babies."

By all the rules Moleen thought she should dislike Tom Laine. But it seemed quite impossible. She looked at him, tall and straight and distinguished-looking, and wondered if she dared go to him and tell him the truth about the burden that lay on her heart.

She knew he could be ruthless and hard as nails in his determination to see a criminal brought to justice. But surely, she thought, hearing his gay banter and seeing the affectionate way he looked at his daughter, there was much kindness in his heart, too. There must be, or he wouldn't have consented to let her stay and live as an equal with his only child.

When the door-bell rang, Mignon explained to her father hurriedly.

"Oh, Dad, I forgot to tell you we have a guest for dinner! My new boy friend. He's charming, really. You'll like him. A man Moleen has known all her life. We bumped into him at the Wayside Inn the other night. I—like him awfully much. So you must, too."

The butler announced Mr. Charles Farro. Moleen, watching the district attorney, thought she saw a look of surprise come over his face But she felt she must have been mistaken when he held out his hand cordially as when Mignon presented Farro to him.

Charlie was decidedly displeased at his sudden meeting with Tom Laine He had planned that for later—after he had persuaded Mignon to elope. But there was nothing in his manner to show that he might be worrying.

He was as cool and collected as though he were an old friend of the family, and wore his tux as though he'd been born to it.

Moleen found herself fascinatedly watching him during dinner, and admiring his gift for smooth conversation. Maybe, she thought, she had misjudged Charlie. Perhaps there was nothing really wrong about him, after all.

She might just be prejudiced because she knew him before he went away to college, before he acquired his polish. But she knew he could drop his charming manners and show the brass knuckles once in awhile. But so subtly and insidiously charming was Mr. Farro, that by the time dinner was over Moleen was almost convinced she must be mistaken.

Mignon beamed on Charlie while he discussed the political situation with her father, and assured him in glowing terms that he would be the next governor of New York State. The people, Charlie declared, were entirely ready for a clean, fearless government. And his host was being talked of as the one man who could give it to them.

Over liquers in the library, the district attorney brought up the subject of Brooklyn gangs.

"There doesn't seem to be," he sipped his cordial, "much left of the Rafetti gang since we sent that bunch up last year. You're a Brooklynite. Do you think we've got them pretty well cleaned out?"

"Undoubtedly." Farro lit a cigarette with steady hands. "You did a thorough job there."

"I—don't know." Laine seemed to be studying. "I've never seemed to be sure there wasn't a man higher up in that Rafetti rat's nest. Some one perhaps we've never suspected."

"That's possible," Charlie nodded. "But if so, you must have him pretty well scared. They've been lying low, a long time."

"Or," Laine drained his glass, "gone into another racket. Counterfeiting is a pretty poor way of cleaning up, anyway. A man clever enough to be the brains behind the Rafetti gang should be able to thing up a smarter racket than passing fake greenbacks."

"Does a criminal use his intelligence to that extent, sir? Perhaps if he did he wouldn't be a criminal."

Laine got up.

"I wonder? Well, good night, Farro. It's been interesting having you with us. I've some work to do now, so if you'll excuse me, I'll run along."

It seemed a remarkable coincidence to the district attorney that Charlie Farro should have walked into his home as a guest that night. It was only that day that very definite information had come to him linking Farro with the Rafetti gang.

It was the first time, so far as he knew, that the handsome young Brooklyn attorney had ever been suspected of being outside the pale of the law. Troubled, he sat down to put the puzzle together.

His daughter had met Farro through Moleen O'Dare. The girl had been picked up in Central Park, supposedly struck by Mignon's car She hadn't really been injured. Merely grazed. That in itself seemed strange.

It was stranger still that Farro should turn up and recognize his old friend Miss O'Dare at the Wayside Inn the first night she was ever out with Mignon.

Then there was Farro's sudden interest in Mignon. As much as he loved his daughter, he had to admit she was hardly the type to knock a man like Farro off his feet at first sight.

Reasoning it out, Tom Laine convinced himself thoroughly that there was mystery in the puzzle. And treachery. For some reason, the girl who was a guest in his house had framed her way into the affections of his daughter. Had played on her sympathy and laid the foundation for Farro's entrance into his home. But why?

The prosecutor picked up the telephone and called Bill Feldman, one of his prized lieutenants.

"Bill," he instructed his supersleuth," I have a job. It's very important and I want you to handle it yourself. Call me back any time between now and morning, or as soon as you can get the information.

"I want you to check up on a girl. The information I have is that she used to live on lower Lavely street in Brooklyn. In the tenement section. The name is Moleen O'Dare."

Had District Attorney Laine known it, Jed Patrick could have saved him all the trouble of checking up on Moleen. Early in the afternoon Jed had gone over to Brooklyn for the express purpose of finding out what possible connection his mascot could have with Charlie Farro.

It troubled his conscience no little to pry into Moleen's affairs. But he eased it by assuring himself he had only her interest at heart. After all, she had no one to protect her, and because he had nominated himself Dutch uncle it was up to him to find out if Farro really was the type of man who would be up to no good.

Jed felt he owed it to Mignon as well. She was too nice and generous a person to be imposed upon by any one who would take unfair advantage of her.

That morning he signed a contract with Joe Elting, which guaranteed more money than he'd hoped to ever see in an entire lifetime. But he felt he couldn't even celebrate until the Farro-Moleen mystery was solved.

Remembering a newspaper reporter he had met a few weeks before, he decided to go to the Brooklyn Democrat and see if he could pick up any information about Charlie there. Lynne Banker was a first cousin of one of his best friends in the little Kentucky college, and could certainly be trusted to keep a confidence.

On the way over in the subway, Jed took the envelope from his pocket upon which Joe Elting had scribbled his idea of the way Jed should be billed. He read, grinning boyishly:

JED PATRICK
THE GENTLEMAN HILLBILLY
With
SUNNY TUCKER
And His SWINGSTERS

Elting was planning a radio audition in a few days, and was even going to see a friend about his screen test. Elting wanted him to stress comedy, for which he had a fine flare, and use as many funny southern numbers as he could cram into his repertoire. Jed thanked his lucky stars his new manager didn't insist upon a hick costume for he was certain that, even for much needed money, he couldn't make a laughing stock out of his mountain people.

"The Gentleman Hillbilly!" Not bad. Jed told himself, grinning again. Wouldn't he have a surprise for the folks back home when the ads came out and he could send clippings and pictures from the papers! Only his mother had been sure her boy had a great talent that would be recognized. If it hadn't been for her, he would have lived and died on the dairy farm in Kentucky.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, July 3.

Sunday's horoscope holds auguries of a lively, adventurous and probably romantic day, with much stirring of an intriguing, mysterious or singular character. Mystical or occult research may lead into peculiar experiences. Love affairs may have elements of subtlety or secrecy. But there are benefits, especially from elders or serious-minded persons.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and enterprising year in which there may be factors of the peculiar or unusual. Travel may be advisable, and elders may be disposed to give substantial support. In private affiliations there may be romance, surprises and happy social activities.

For Monday, July 4.

Monday's astrological forecast shows splendid opportunity for advancing the position and expanding the fortunes by diligence and fidelity in employment, and through the preferment of superiors or those in influential positions. Contracts or writings which might have a local or artistic bearing should prove lucrative and should be pushed.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are urged to be ready to grasp openings for decided growth and expansion in the affairs of both business and private lives Elders, superiors and those in high places will be found friendly and ready to give support to meritorious propositions.

For Tuesday, July 5.

This should be a day of much enterprise and initiative, but there may be some excitement and turbulence, if not violence, judging by the lunar and mutual configurations. Upheaval, commotion and probably litigation may make matters very disagreeable and unprofitable, unless good judgment, sound sense and calm demeanor are permitted to overrule rash emotionalism. Change may be of benefit, especially if engineered with prudence and discretion.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of disaster and disturbance if they permit tempestuous and reckless behavior to complicate affairs Litigation, violence, enmity and distress are likely to follow unruly and vindictive conduct whereas some success and profitable adventure may climax calm and restrained activities. Tact and discretion may turn matters to good account.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

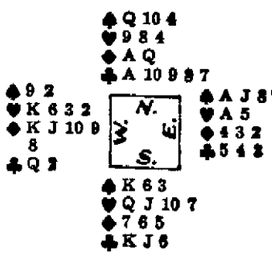
"The Authority on Authorities"

LEADING TO WEAKNESS

There is one advantage possessed alone by the player who sits at the right of the dealer. He is the only one of the four who ever can be sure he is leading up to weakness on the part of the last enemy play to a trick. When he looks at the dummy, he can see what is the weakest suit. A lead of that has a chance to find his partner with a winning honor with no risk of putting it "under the hammer" of a higher hostile one.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Three different types of play and defense were used on this deal in a duplicate, all playing a 3-No Trumps contract by South and all receiving the spade 9 as the opening lead, because of East's spade bid.

At table 1, declarer played the 4 from dummy, East the 7 and South won with the K. He then tried the diamond finesse, which held, and cashed five clubs and the diamond A, making one short of game.

At table 2, declarer played the Q of spades from dummy and East won with the A. Fearing to give declarer two spade tricks if he continued the suit, he switched to a diamond, which North won with the A. With two sure spade tricks, two diamonds and five clubs, game was made.

At table 3, good defense set good play. Declarer covered the spade 9 with the Q and East took with the A. He then led the heart 5, which West won with the K. The return of the spade 2 now limited South to one spade trick. Whether he played the 10 or 4 did not matter, as East could top either.

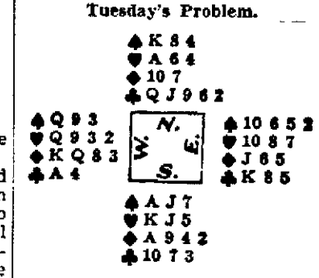
Tuesday's Problem.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

With the diamond 3 led against South's contract of 3-No Trump, how should he proceed to make game?

RAILROADER AT BUCYRUS QUITS AFTER 47 YEARS

John Elder Brings In Last N. Y. C. Train, Plans Travel In Retirement.

BUCYRUS—Closing a career of railroading which started 47 years ago as a fireman out of Corning on the old T. and O. C. railroad, John Elder, brought in his last train Friday in retirement.

Mr. Elder has been an engineer for the last 20 years on the New York Central railroad, working on the northern and southern divisions of the line.

An enthusiastic traveler, Mr. Elder, with his wife, plans to visit other parts of the world. He and Mrs. Elder have already traveled in Europe, Asia, North Africa, the West Indies and Hawaii and all but two states in United States. These two, the Carolinas, they will visit soon when they go to Florida to make an extended visit.

CRAWFORD COURT NOTES

BUCYRUS—After one day had been spent in hearing evidence in the $1,500 damage action of John W. Payne and others against the City of Galion and Polk township, the case was continued. Payne asks damages for alleged losses suffered from flood from ditches erected by the defendants.

The judgment of the local common pleas court was affirmed by the court of appeals in minutes received in the office of Clerk of Courts Carl Ross in the damage action of Dorothy Blackford against David Kaplan. Mrs. Blackford was given a verdict of $12,000 by a jury in common pleas court in October, last year. The action involved an automobile accident near Tiro.

Bertha Harrer against Mary Haybeck and others, sale confirmed, deed ordered and distribution made.

Montgomery Ward company against the Colonial Finance company, defendant granted leave to plead by July 16.

L. M. Gardner against Ida Johns and others, finding returned in favor of defendants Clarence Helfrick and the Crestline Building and Loan association.

Margaret Barger against Samuel Barger, divorce decree granted the plaintiff on grounds of extreme cruelty and gross neglect.

BURIED TODAY

Rites for Paul C. Ernst, 20, Conducted at Galion.

GALION—Private funeral services were held at 1:30 p. m. today at the Volk funeral home for Paul Clemens Ernst, 21, of 423 East Parson street. Burial was made in Mt. Calvary cemetery.

He died Friday morning at University hospital, Columbus, where he was taken Wednesday night. His death was sudden and followed an illness of three days of spinal meningitis.

He was born in Galion, April 22, 1917, a son of Clemens and Melinda Ernst. Surviving are his parents; a sister, Dorothy, and two brothers, James and Bernard Ernst.

A member of the St. Joseph Catholic church, and the Eagles' lodge, he was also well known here as a baseball player. He was catcher for both the Cubs and the Knights of Columbus softball teams. He was graduated from Galion high school in 1935, and until his sudden illness he worked at the Lemley grocery.

Iberia

Grover Dixon underwent a goitre operation in the University hospital at Columbus Tuesday. He is improving.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

INTERLUDE

I HOED in the melon patch until I was tired, then I walked along the edge of my neighbor's timothy field, looking for a cool place to rest. The black raspberries were turning red, but I did not find any ripe ones. The wind made great deep waves across the field of hay, and it looked enticing. I waded in, waist deep.

The tall woods bounds the meadow at one end, and hedges were along two other sides. Where some young hickory trees made a pleasant shade, I sat down in the sea of waving grass. By putting up my hand as high as I could reach I could not reach the top of the nearest stalks. I was entirely hidden. My little pocket among the grasses was all my own, open only to the sky beyond the overhanging trees. It had a charm, a privacy, a nearness to the earth that suited me.

I took off my old straw hat, turned over on my stomach and stretched full length. My face was down close to the roots of grass. I smelled the mold and looked ahead through little lanes among the tall slender stalks, each with its bending, nodding head. It was a different world, familiar to ants and field mice, or meadow birds and rabbits.

I shut my eyes and listened. From above, the wind roared through the trees and rustled the heads of grass against each other with a sound not unlike the surf. In fancy I could see the cool waves rolling on white sand, with a line of tumbling foam. But the bob white spoke from the bushes, and a distant wagon rattled into a neighboring field.

The earth was cool beneath me. It held my relaxed, tired body comfortably, shut off by walls of grass from everything but rest. I lay there quite a while. When I got up, a long dent in the meadow grass marked where I had lain. I was refreshed, and went back to work again.

RESUME HEARING

GALION — A continuation of the hearing by the National Labor Relations board of the International Association of Machinists' complaint against the Perfection Steel Body company charging unfair labor practices, was planned for today and possibly next week.

The charges preferred against the local company state that the company discouraged unionization and sponsored a company union, known as the Galion Metal Workers' association.

CITY SET FOR ELABORATE 4TH

Monday's Celebration To Be Most Extensive In Years If Weatherman Behaves.

races. It will be formally opened by a proclamation read by Mayor Claude M. Hunter.

At 7 p. m. Russell Gimbel, director of the Friendly House, will present four boxing bouts in which three out-of-town boxers will be matched with three of this best performers. The fourth will be a free-for-all.

Highlights of the day will be the historical cavalcade of American Independence which will be presented at 8 p. m. and the spectacular fireworks display at 9:30.

The cavalcade, directed and staged by J. Gilbert Baird and R. O. Richards, will be presented on a revolving stage in the inlot opposite the grandstand and will last an hour and a half.

The cavalcade will be presented in song, music and drama, and will be made up of six sequences —the Birth of the Nation, the Country at Peace; the Civil War; the Gay Nineties; the World War; and Twenty Years after.

There will be two bands, the Musicians Association band and the Senior High school band and the Senior High drum and bugle corps; Battery D, more than 50 of Mansfield's best singers, players from the Mansfield Community Players, the older dancers of the Marty Hogan Dance studio, and 320 individuals taking part in the elaborate presentation.

The entire celebration is being made possible through community co-operation. Funds for the fireworks display, said to be one of the largest in the country this year, were raised by popular subscription. The set pieces are so elaborate that three men from the company from which they were purchased, have worked on their construction for the past three days and will remain here over the holiday to supervise the fireworks program. Fifty ground pieces have been built and several hundred rockets, bombs and candles will be fired, according to Roy Vaughn, president of the Parks association.

SHELBY POLICE HUNT SUSPECTS

SHELBY—Charged with forgery, Maynard L. McCammon, 24, of Ashland, and Charles Biehl, 28, of Fostoria, today were being hunted by the Shelby police to answer charges filed here.

Police said the affidavits were signed Friday afternoon by Jack Kennedy, jr., of the Kennedy Clothing store and Oscar Fensch, of the Esquire store, in this city. Both stated to police that the men had forged checks for merchandise.

DRIVER HURT

BUCYRUS—Gordon Harris, 33, Cleveland, who was injured in an automobile accident near Osceola Wednesday night, remained in a critical condition at City hospital today.

Harris remains in a semi-conscious condition. He suffered a fractured skull, fractured shoulder and other injuries when his car struck a guard rail when he failed to negotiate a curve.

Orilla Kelly, Scotia, N. Y., companion of Harris, also is confined to the hospital with minor injuries.

Mrs. Kaman was born the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Vinal, April 23, 1904. She was a member of the International Bible students.

Survivors include two children, Jane and Joseph, one sister, Miss Olive Vinal, and her mother. She was preceded in death by her father 20 years ago.

WINS CAR, GAS

Mansfield Woman Gets First Prize In Radio Contest.

Mrs. Delmar L. Ader, 31 Highland avenue, wrote 25 simple words on a plain piece of paper —and received a big new car and a gilt-edged vacation.

She was one of ten in the nation to win a Studebaker sedan, 1,000 gallons of gas and $100 in cash for vacation money, in a radio contest.

She was notified by telegram that the car, equipped with a radio, would be delivered to her next week, with an order for the gasoline on a local agent.

Mrs. Ader said today now that the vacation is handed to her, she and her husband can't decide where to go.

Which is a luxurious feeling.

RITES SUNDAY

GREENWICH — Funeral services for Clarence J. Van Brimer, 65, who died Thursday at the home of his son on West Main street, will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday at the Hines and Bender funeral home, Greenwich. Rev. Bryenton of the United M. E. church will officiate. Burial will be in the Mt. Gilead cemetery.

Mr. Van Brimer is survived by a son, Millard, with whom he lived.

Shelby

Police Chief Leroy Coffey will be the guest speaker at a special church service to be sponsored on July 14 at the First Methodist church by the Epworth league.

Miss Alice Flickinger will be the leader when the Intermediate Christian Endeavor of the First Church of Christ meets Sunday night at the church for its weekly session.

Members of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Shoup's bridge club will leave this week-end to spend their annual vacation at Lake Erie.

The Rotary club will hold its regular noon luncheon meeting Tuesday instead of Monday at the Weaver Inn.

Mrs. H. O. Hilborn and Carl Daugherty won score prizes when Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Light entertained friends this week at their country home, near Shelby.

The Jolly Fifteen club will be entertained Thursday at the home of Mrs. Robert Ruckman in Mt. Vernon for a special "visitation" meeting.

One guest, Mrs. Hayden Hess, was present when nine members of the Tourist club met Thursday at the home of Mrs. E. D. Sheriff.

The Catholic Ladies's club of Willard will hold its annual picnic here July 13 at Seltzer park.

CRESTLINE—As a post nuptial courtesy to Mrs. Frederick J. Gottfried, the Misses Mary Margaret Reed, Bernadette Metzger and Mary Harris entertained at a dinner party and miscellaneous shower of gifts in her honor at the Blue Lantern Thursday evening. The dinner was served at 7 o'clock at one long table decorated with pink roses and pink tapers.

Miss Iva Blocker and Miss Marie Fisher presented the prizes which they won in playing hearts to the honoree who was also the recipient of a shower of miscellaneous gifts.

Mrs. Gottfried before her marriage last Sunday was Miss Julia Fisher.

The Young Men's club dispensed with their regular meeting Thursday evening and instead held a picnic at Seltzer park in Shelby.

* * *

Phyllis Gilchrist, North Seltzer street was hostess for the 4-H club meeting Thursday, when 18 members were present. Esther Mae Speelman presided. Plans were discussed for a picnic on July 20 at Heise Park, Galion, and for the "health" and personality meeting in Crestline July 23.

The group also discussed ideas for a booth at the Crawford county fair.

The customary hour was spent on sewing projects. Lunch was served by Martha and Marjorie Iiams, Janet McNeal and the hostess.

The club's next meeting will be with Virginia Stuck.

CRESTLINE WOMAN RETIRES, WITH RAILROAD 37 YEARS

CRESTLINE — Mrs. Margaret Holloran was retired today from active service with the Pennsylvania Railroad company and placed on pension.

Mrs. Holloran, only woman employe of the company in Crestline, has a service record which equals that of many men employes, as she has worked almost 37 years. Her husband, Thomas Holloran, turntable operator was killed in an accident at the roundhouse and the following year, in November, 1901, Mrs. Holloran entered the employ of the company as matron at the passenger station, which position she held for 19 years. When that position was abolished she was transferred to the enginehouse as custodian of the offices, where she was employed until her retirement.

At the time of her husband's death she was left with five children ranging from three to 12 years of age, two of whom have died. Mrs. Holloran and her daughter, Gertrude reside on West Bucyrus street. She has a son, John, also of Crestline, and a son, Paul of Cleveland.

The marriage of Miss Faye M. Blazer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Blazer, of west of Crestline, and Marion P. Brown, son of Mrs. Elsie Brown of near Liberty, was solemnized Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock at the parsonage of the English Lutheran church. Rev. S. A. Metzger, pastor of the church, officiated using the single-ring ceremony. There were no attendants.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents with covers laid for 18, at a long table decorated with garden flowers and a wedding cake.

A white satin brocade dress, made streeth length with high neckline and puffed sleeves, was worn by the bride for her wedding. With it, she wore a white hat and white accessories. She is a graduate of Leesville High school.

The groom graduated from Tiro High school and operates his own farm near Liberty where the couple will reside.

Pink roses and tall pink tapers decorated the table for the 6 o'clock dinner served members of the Alpha Sigma club Wednesday evening at the Blue Lantern. Mrs. S. F. Trimble was hostess for the meeting.

Two contests were held following the dinner and prizes awarded to Mrs. John Beck and Mrs. Carl Lesley. The hostess' daughter, Mary Ann Trimble, gave a reading.

Plans were discussed for a picnic for members and their families to be held sometime in July.

Mrs. Philip Stentz was hostess to the Sunshine Pinochle club and two guests, Mrs. Homer Enders and Mrs. Max Levant, Wednesday evening at her home on East Bucyrus street. Prizes in the evening's games were awarded to Mrs. Pearl Overly, Mrs. L. W. Buell, Mrs. C. A. Cowgill, and Mrs. Levant.

Mrs. Cowgill was elected to succeed Mrs. Walter Mooney as president of the club.

Lunch was served by the hostess and Mrs. Overly announced as the hostess for the club's next meeting, July 27.

Echo club members held a dinner party at Greenlawn, west of Crestline, Wednesday evening. Cards and dancing followed the dinner served at 7 o'clock. Miss Ethel Lansdowne, prize winner in the evening's bridge games, invited the club to be her guests in two weeks.

PWA APPROVES TWO PROJECTS

Shelby Gets $300,000 To Use On Improvements In Municipal Plants.

SHELBY—Tentative approval had been given by PWA officials today in Columbus for two projects calling for an expenditure of $300,000 for enlargement of the municipal electric and water companies in this city, J. P. Adkins, superintendent of the two companies, announced.

The projects are set up so that the city, as sponsor, will pay $165,000 while PWA will give federal grants of $135,000. Preliminary legislation for the improvements had been passed by city council last month.

Included in the $100,000 program for the municipal water company will be a water softener unit, costing approximately $45,000, Adkins stated, as well as a water storage tank. The water tank which will increase water pressure in the downtown fire area will save Shelby nearly $7,000 annually in fire insurance rates, city officials estimated.

The city's share of the water company program will be financed by a $55,000 bond issue which comes before the voters at the primaries in August, while the electric company project will be paid from the company's revenue.

MRS. HELSEL, 82, DIES IN AKRON

Former Ashland Resident To Be Brought Home For Burial.

ASHLAND—Mrs. Dorothy Helsel, 82, a former Ashland resident, died Friday morning at an Akron hospital.

Mrs. Helsel was born Sept. 8, 1856 at Johnstown, Pa., and had lived in Ashland and Mansfield with relatives before going to Akron. She was a member of the Lutheran church at Portage, Pa.

Surviving are her husband George of Portage, Pa., five daughters, four sons, one sister, 18 grandchildren, and one great grandchild.

Funeral services will be held here at 2:30 p. m. Monday at Gilbert's chapel with Rev. A. H. Smith, pastor of the Ashland Trinity Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in Ashland cemetery.

CELEBRATE 4TH

SHELBY — Shelby's annual Fourth of July celebration will be held Monday at 8 p. m. at the W. W. Skiles' athletic field by the American Legion and Shelby Better Business club. Preceding the fireworks will be an hour concert played by the New Washington band. Due to the celebration, no regular concert will be held tonight at Central school park.

NO SERVICES SUNDAY

SHELBY—No services will be held Sunday at the First Methodist church. Due to absence of Rev. W. W. Ralph, pastor of the church, guest ministers will serve the church during July.

Armstrong-Jensen Wedding Held at Lexington Home

LEXINGTON — The marriage of Miss Florence Armstrong, daughter of Rollie Armstrong of near Lexington, and Richard Jensen, son of Mrs. Frank Andrews of Bellville, had been announced today.

The couple was married at the bride's home, June 26, before an altar decorated with roses and baskets of flowers.

The father of the bride gave her in marriage. For the impressive single-ring ceremony, Mrs. Jensen wore a gown of white chiffon over bridal satin with a shoulder length veil attached to a Juliet cap. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and gardenias tied with satin ribbon.

She was attended by her two sisters, Miss Ruby, as maid of honor, and Miss Elsie as bridesmaid. The maid of honor wore white net over light blue satin and the bridesmaid wore white net over shell pink satin. Both gowns were made in the same style as the bride's. The two attendants wore wide brimmed hats of shell pink and carried arm bouquets of sweet peas.

Nuptial music was furnished by Mrs. Charles Swigart and Miss Rachel Woodruff, organists, and Mrs. Robert Swigart, soloist. Kenneth Mowry was best man.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's father. A buffet supper was served to 75 guests. The couple will be at home following an eastern wedding trip.

SALES INCREASE

ASHLAND—Sale of new cars and trucks in this county increased slightly in June over May, it was pointed out by Charles A. McBride, clerk of courts.

Figures released by McBride show that there were 50 new cars and nine new trucks sold in June in comparison with the 49 passenger cars and five trucks in May.

FRISCH AND CARDINAL FRONT OFFICE ARE ON THE OUTS.

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Red hot dope from St. Louis say Frank Frisch and the Cardinal front office are on the outs and that the veteran Burt Shotton of Columbus will be in there next year....Even California scribes are yelling that Max Baer should be made to prove himself against Bob Pastor or somebody else before they feed him to Joe Louis again....starting batteries for Wednesday's all-star game in "Zinzinnati" will be Vander Meer and Lombardi for the Nationals and Gomez and Dickey for the Americans.

Philly may be the next big league town to turn on the lights. ....If Joe Louis refuses to fight again this year, what will Mike Jacobs do for a September extravaganza?....We offer you Schmeling vs. James J. Braddock (which may be announced any day now)....

Larry MacPhail of the Dodgers is sending Freddy Fitzsimmons to the all-star game with railroad fare, hotel accommodations and all other expenses paid in recognition of the old boy's fine pitching lately. We have a hunch—mind you, it's just that — that Helen Jacobs will get even with Mrs. Moody in a big way today.

Meet Today In Tourney Finals

LOUISVILLE—(INS)—Bert McDowell of Louisiana State university and John P. Burke of Georgetown were to meet here today in the final 36 holes of the national intercollegiate gold championship.

McDowell, 19-year-old sophomore from Kansas City, Mo., entered the final round by defeating Lew Oehmig of the University of Virginia in a magnificent match which was forced to 37 holes at no time during the game did more than two strokes separate the semi-finalists but McDowell was forced to play brilliantly to square the match at the 36th hole. He then sank an 18-foot putt on the extra 37th to win.

Burke's semi-final also was a thriller. After he had led Bob Babbish of the University of Detroit, 6 up which held at 4 up on the turn, Burke saw his long lead go glimmering and he just withstood Babbish's strong challenge to win, one up on the final hole.

Don Budge Denies He'll Turn Pro

LONDON —(INS)—Don Budge of California, who yesterday won the All England singles tennis title at Wimbledon for the second consecutive time, today denied reports he plans to turn professional.

"I have received no professional offer," he told International News Service, "and would not consider anything, especially in view of the coming American championships and the Davis cup matches."

Glover and Clemens Win At Ashland

BEAUFORD GLOVER and Tommy Clemens were the Mansfield boys who emerged with flying colors in the Salvation Army building fund amateur boxing show at the Coliseum at the Ashland county Fairground last night before a capacity crowd.

The two Friendly House lads, appearing on the nine-bout card which was headlined by a match between Ernie McKinley of Ashland and Ray Gregg, Cleveland featherweight ace, turned in top-notch performances to win their respective matches handily.

Ernie McKinley, widely-known amateur who appeared on several Mansfield shows in the past year, came through with one of the finest fights of his career to win a decision over Gregg. The victory was a sweet one for McKinley for he dropped a close decision to Gregg in an opening round battle in the Cleveland Golden Gloves tournament this spring. McKinley, according to the judges' cards, won four of the five rounds. He dropped the fourth by a slight margin.

Clemens Wins on K. O.

Clemens, Mansfield J. A. C. flyweight champion, scored a technical knockout over Leo Smith of Ashland in a fast and furious affair. The boys mixed it up plenty, but Clemen's two-fisted attack in the second round was too much for the Ashlander. His seconds tossed in the towel at the bell for the third and final round.

Glover, hard-punching ebony flash, met up with Ray Howman of Ashland and unleashed a terrific bombardment of slashing lefts and rights that left Howman groggy. Glover who finished with a rush, won the unanimous verdict of the judges, Paul Eloit of Mansfield and Wayne County Municipal Judge, Walter Mougey of Wooster. Marvin Glover, a brother of Beauford, lost a dicision to Phil Ganni of Crestline in another three-round match.

In the other matches, Dale Oyster, 180, of Ashland won a decision over Joe Colaturelio, 202, of Tiffin. Bob Lown, 139, Wooster grabbed a decision over Ducky Dever, 141, Ashland. Floyd Manges, 145, Wooster decision over Leo Newcomer, 140, Ashland. Melvin McKinley, 118 Ashland, technical knockout over Jack Webber, 119, Wooster, in 45 seconds of the third round.

Three Referees.

Dean Duffy, 118 and Earl Grover, 114 of Ashland battled to a draw in the three-round exhibition affair, which opened the show. Ed Winsper, Wooster high school football coach and "Rabbit" Siler of Ashland alternated in refereeing the three-round affairs. Neal Lorden of Norwalk was the third man in the ring in the McKinley-Gregg bout.

BAPTISTS TROUNCE SOFTBALLERS, 16-4

The Park Avenue Baptist defeated the Congregational church softball club, 16 to 4 at Maple lake yesterday. The Baptists scored eight runs in the first two frames to win with ease. Cyphers led the winners' attack with a home run and a single.

Mrs. Moody Wins 8th Title

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, left, climaxed one of the finest comebacks in sports history today when she crushed her rival, Helen Jacobs, 6-4, 6-0, in the finals of the All-English tournament to become the first woman in history to win eight Wimbledon titles.

Yankees Finally Hit Stride

By ANTHONY J. PUGLIESE
(INS Sports Writer)

NEW YORK — (INS)—Rumblings from the New York Yankees' dugout today served fair warning on the Cleveland Indians that the path to the American league pennant will be strewn with hardship and turmoil from this point onward.

For the Yankees feel that for the first time this year they have hit their stride, and the two and a half game lead of the Tribe looms not as ominous as it might have a few weeks ago.

Inspiring the world champions is the return to form of their top pitchers, coupled with the rejuvenated batting punch found somewhere in the latter stages of the recent western trip.

Proof that the pitchers are right is seen in the four most recent games played by the Ruppert Rifles. Lefty Gomez, Bump Hadley and Red Ruffing each pitched four hitters, while Spud Chandler yesterday came through with a six-hitter. Meanwhile, the opposition has been able to tally only twice, both being home runs.

Dickey Hits Two Homers.

Bill Dickey, the Yanks' powerful catcher, drove in seven runs with his 13th and 14th home runs as Chandler shut out the Washington Senators, 8-0. Frank Crosetti joined the ever-growing list of homer hitters with a circuit clout off Elon Hogsett in the sixth, to aid in the Yankees' sixth straight win.

In the only other American league contest, Jimmy Foxx hammered out homer No. 23 and Lefty Grove won his 12th victory as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 12 to 7. Earl Brucker hit a homer for the A's losing cause.

Bob Seeds, latest acquisition of the Terrymen, hit a home run with two on base to give the New York Giants a 3 to 1 decision over the Brooklyn Dodgers. The win was the Giants' seventh straight over their rivals across the bridge.

Phillies Win Two.

The Phillies took both ends of a double-header from the Boston Bees, 4 to 1 and 5 to 0. Claude Passeau held the Bees to five hits, including Harl Maggert's home run in the first game, while Wayne Lamaster shut out the Stengelmen with five hits and drove in three himself with a pair of singles, in the nightcap.

In a night game in Cincinnati, the Chicago Cubs hit their early season stride and handed the Reds an 11 to 4 defeat. A crowd of 19,731 booed the Reds throughout the game.

The Indians and White Sox were rained out in Chicago as were the Cardinals at Pittsburgh.

LEGION FACES COSHOCTON AT FAIRGROUND SUNDAY

AN OPPORTUNITY to avenge one of the three defeats suffered in the Central Ohio semi-pro baseball league this season will be offered the American Legion team Sunday when it clashes with the Coshocton Regulars in the much-postponed Boosters' day game at the Fairground.

Dewey Durant's Legionnaires can fulfill a two-fold purpose on Sunday's program in which the American Legion Juniors will tackle the Elyria Juniors in a preliminary attraction at 1:30 p. m.

Fourth Place At Stake.

A victory will give the Mansfielders sole possession of fourth place, which they now share with the invaders, and will also provide them with a chance of hopping into third.

The Legion suffered a 10-inning, 4 to 3, setbad in a tilt at Coshocton recently, and will send Donald Dudley to the mound in an effort to gain the decision Sunday.

Chrismer, who was on the mound against the Legion outfit at Coshocton, is expected to toe the rubber for the visitors.

The chances of the Mansfield team jumping into third place Sunday depends on the outcome of the New Philadelphia-Logan game at New Philadelphia Sunday. The Phillies now hold a half-game advantage over the Legion, and a defeat will knock them out of third.

Play At Logan Sunday.

Mansfield will trek to Logan Monday for a holiday affair with the Logan Merchants. Durant announced today that Darby Yarmon and Bing Miller will handle the Sunday game.

Canzols Play 2 Games At League Park Monday

Meet Aultman Grocers of Canton In Twin Bill; Colored Elks Play at Tillman Park Sunday.

STRENGTHENED by the addition of Dave Arbaugh, the Ira D. Ling Canzols will go after three victories over the week-end.

Manager Jeff Holmquist announced today that he had signed Arbaugh, and that he will hurl one of the tilts on the holiday double-header against the Aultman Grocers of Canton at League park.

Arbaugh, who last season pitched for the Mohican Chevrolets, city sandlot champions, is expected to bolster the Canzols' staff.

The Canzols will journey to Lexington Sunday for a single game with the Whitney Service Station club, and then will hop back to league park for the twin bill which gets underway at 1:30 p. m.

Canton will use Artis and Blankership on the mound Monday.

Earl Herrick's Hi-Speeds will invade Johnsville Sunday for a single game. Pete Beer will handle the pitching assignment for the Mansfield club as it seeks to halt the Johnnies nine-game winning streak. The Hi-Speeds will be after their fifth triumph of the season. The club will not play Monday, but will return to action Thursday when it goes to Wakeman to meet the Sandusky Clover Seals in a first-round game of the North Central semi-pro baseball tournament.

* * *

The Mansfield Colored Elks play the Trio Merchants at Tillman park Sunday. The game is scheduled to start at 3 p. m. On Monday the Elks meet the Johnsville team at Tillman park. A preliminary softball game between the Blue Streaks, colored girls' team, and the Crestline colored girls will be played at 1 p. m.

Bob Martin's Mohican Chevrolets tackle Butler in a single affair at Butler Sunday. The club will be seeking its fourth straight victory.

* * *

The Rex Billiards will have their hands full this week-end. Sunday the Cuemen clash with the Shelby Settlement team in a doubleheader on the Settlement diamond. Joe Moore and John Irvine will pitch for the Billiards. John Stoner's club battle the Cary Merchants at Carey Monday. The Biliards defeated Carey, 8 to 1, recently, and Lawrence Smith, who held the losers to one hit is expected to do the twirling.

Fans Beefing On All-Star Selections

Indian Fans Think Trosky Should Be on Roster.

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—The loudest laments in the wake of the naming of the squads for the all-star game at Cincinnati July 6 come from Cleveland and, of all places, Brooklyn.

Cleveland fans are beefing because their sterling first baseman, Hal Trosky, was left off the American league roster, and the Brooklyn addicts are boiling because Freddie Fitzsimmons, the veteran knuckle-ball artist, was given the go-by when the National league chose its best.

Trosky, while no bargain as a fielder, has been levelling the fences all season, and at the moment is second only to his teammate, Earl Averill, among American league sluggers. He is banging the ball far ahead of the three first-basemen who were picked by the American leaguers — Jimmy Foxx, Hank Greenberg and Lou Gehrig.

Burleigh Grimes Sore.

Burleigh Grimes, Brooklyn manager, is as sore as the Flatbush fans about the "slighting" of Fitzsimmons by his former bosom pal, Bill Terry, who made the final selection of the National league team he will handle in the big one-day engagement.

"Everybody knows that Fitz would knock those American leaguers silly for three innings," Grimes fumed.

Cleveland would appear to have even a more meritorious protest on the exclusion of Trosky. Taking the batting figures at their face value, there would be no way of leaving him off. Still, this observer has a hunch he saw Trosky beating himself out of an all-star place more than a month ago.

Cleveland was having pre-game batting practice at the Yankee stadium, and Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yanks was watching from the dugout. All except Trosky took full swings. The Indians' slugger, peeved because the practice pitcher wasn't placing the ball where he wanted it, just stuck out his bat a couple of times and then slouched away.

"What would you do to a player who acted like that?" someone asked McCarthy. McCarthy discharged a jet of tobacco juice at a convenient post and said nothing, but his silence was eloquent. He made the final choice of the American league squad.

NEW YORK—Putting the sports shot here and there:

Stay away from Maxie Baer if you want to save your money. . . . He talks the best fight of any heavyweight I know. . . . With a protfolio of baby snapshots to back up his arguments he almost had me ready to bet Joe Louis wouldn't last three rounds against him next September. . . .

The U. S. L. T. A.-) 43-86 is casting around for a successor to D. N. Budge who can hardly wait to fulfill a promise to the tennis fathers so that he can turn professional. . . . They exacted his vow not to begin capitalizing until after the Davis cup challenge round and the nationals. . . . So look for Bobby Riggs to be a member of this year's cup squad...

Ralph Guldahl has been made the 8-1 favorite to win the P. G. A. at Shawnee-on-Delaware on the strength of his victory in the open. . . . I don't agree for Guldahl is strictly a medal player and the P. G. A. is a match play tournament.

Robert Taylor goes eight rounds with Patsy Perroni in his latest movie. . . . If I can get 3-1 I am going to bet on Lou Ambers to beat Henry Armstrong. . . . While not being one of the Herkimer youth's ardent admirers I know he is as tough as they come and Armstrong's manager Eddie Meads fears him more than he did Ross...

The Cincinnati Reds tried to trade Catcher Ernie Lombardi last winter because they doubted his ability to handle pitchers. . . . He hasn't done much for a wild youngster named Vander Meer this year . . . Only two consecutive no-hitters and nine straight wins. . . . Baseball critics say that Vandy has nothing but blinding speed yet and that when he perfects his change of pace he'll become one of the greatest right hand pitchers in the game unless he throws his arm away. . . .

You can't help but like Joe Engel, president of the Chattanooga Southern leaguers. . . . The Barnum of the bushes hired Rogers Hornsby to run his club then asked him to pass along any good tips he got on the horses. . . . I wouldn't mind having a good one myself after betting on War Admiral Wednesday.

POSTPONE CHURCH GAMES

Monday's games in the Y. M. C. A. Church softball league will be postponed, it was announced by Don Cram, physical director of the Y today. The schedule will be resumed July 11.

Johnnies Can Grab Share Of First-Half Title Tuesday

THE undefeated Johns park club can assure itself of at least a share of the first-round championship in the City softball league in the weekly games Tuesday.

Sporting a brilliant record of four straight triumphs against the city's premier outfits, the Johnnies face the last-place Prospect park team at Prospect park in the feature affair Tuesday. If the leaders can hand the Prospecters their fifth successive defeat, they will be sure of sharing the title.

While the John's park machine battles in this all-important tilt, the second-place Richland county fish and game team of North park moves over to Liberty park for a tussle with the Liberty park club.

The Northeiners need a victory Tuesday to remain in the running for the first-round title, and can be expected to "shoot the works." North's only defeat was administered by the Johnnies, whom they tackle next week in the final game on the first-half schedule.

Fullager on Mound.

Jimmy Fullager will probably work on the mound. He will be opposed by Ted Frishbee as Prospect fights to register its first victory.

The North park aggregation, who lost the services of its star pitcher, Lefty Garver, last week, will send Geottles against Manager Nick Wagner's charges. Wagner will have Joe Bush and Joe Wentz available for duty.

Humphries On Mound Today

CHICAGO — (AP) — Johnny Humphries, the rookie right-hander whose blinding speed is comparable to that of Bob Feller, was to go to the mound here today for the Cleveland Indians in their delayed opener with the Chicago White Sox. Johnny Whitehead was to oppose him.

The contest scheduled between the two clubs yesterday was postponed because of wet grounds. It will be played as part of a double header tomorrow.

Humphries has shown great pitching in eight appearances this season but as he went to the box today Manager Oscar Vitt announced he did not intend to use the youthful Virginian as a regular starter.

"Humphries is far too valuable as a relief pitcher," Vitt said. "A pennant-contending ball club needs a hurler who can be counted upon to work three out of four days if necessary and turn in a good job every time. Johnny fills that bill."

With the double-header here tomorrow and another at Detroit Monday, Vitt faces a severe test to come up with four starting hurlers. At the moment he can count on only Johnny Allen, Bob Feller and Mel Harder. The remainder of the staff is a decided gamble.

ST. PAUL — (AP) — The bat of Ollie Bejma, St. Paul second baseman, which only 15 days ago was producing at a very mediocre .237 figure, today is one of the most menacing war clubs in the American association.

Since June 16 he has batted a 500 clip, raised his season's average above the .300 mark, clouted homers at an average better than one every two days and powered the Apostles into first place.

His homer in the 12th inning with two on base gave St. Paul the league lead yesterday. Another homer yesterday with the score tied and none on base, kept them there.

Minneapolis was the victim, 3-2.

Kansas City had to score two runs in an eighth inning rally yesterday to nose out Milwaukee, 6-5, while Indianapolis halted a Louisville comeback in the ninth just in time to win by the same score.

Mike Ryba's double that tied the score and Lynn King's single that followed gave Columbus a ninth inning 8 to 7 verdict over Toledo.

ROCHESTER, Minn. — (AP) — Every silver lining has a cloud.

That is the way the doctors say it at the Mayo Clinic. The cloud is disappointment. It is the thing that always happens when men become inspired by high hopes from a new medical discovery.

The "silver lining" most recently probed at the clinic is sugar shock, the new treatment for schizophrenia, insanity's worst form. Sugar shock is caused by administering insulin until the patient is near death from lack of sugar in his blood.

Four years ago Manfred Sakel, young Viennese physician, startled the medical world with discovery of this shock treatment. It was taken up enthusiastically all over the world.

E. F. Rosenberg, M. D., and F. P. Moersch, M. D., report the latest results in the Proceedings of the Mayo Clinic. Sugar shock cured some schizophrenics at the Clinic. A couple relapsed afterward.

The Mayo doctors conclude that sugar shock is a good treatment, but that "the enthusiasm with which these forms of shock theraphy have been recommended probably will have to be modified."

T. B. DEATHS OFF

OTTAWA—(AP)—A marked decrease in the number of deaths from tuberculosis among young children has been achieved recently by the use of tuberculosis vaccine, the American Association for the Advancement of Science has been told by Dr. J. A. Baudouin of the University of Montreal.

THEATER

PARAMOUNT'S production schedule look fairly promising with several of the screen's brightest stars in well-known or original screen stories. Harold Lloyd who, like Charlie Chaplin, makes pictures only when he feels like it, and that's about once every two or three years, has another one ready for release, "Professor Beware," and there's a Bing Crosby film also ready to be sent to exhibitors. It is "Sing, You Sinners" with Crosby, Fred MacMurray, a kid named Donald O'Connor and Ellen Drew. Then there is Randolph Scott and Joan Bennett in "The Texans," and "Spawn of The North" with George Raft, Henry Fonda, Akim Tamiroff, John Barrymore and Dorothy Lamour. Jack Benny gets a break at last and gets the girl in his next picture "Artists and Models Abroad." A second Crosby picture "Paris Honeymoon" with Francisca Gaal and Shirley Ross and "If I Were King" with Ronald Colman as Villon, are also in the making.

MAYOR WINS 14 TIMES

WEST PLAINS, Mo.—(UP)—Mayor J. C. Harlin, elected for his 14th consecutive term, has been mayor here for 26 years.

Three Blind Mice.

A three-way romance progresses in "Three Blind Mice," but so mixed up are the courses of true love that no one knows who is to marry whom until the final fade out. Thre girls who are pretty sick of a Kansas chicken ranch, inherit $5,000 and decide to stake it all in a millionaire husband for one of them. In proper sequence they meet three young men and of course some are rich and some are poor but it takes a full length feature film for the girls to find out which is which. The sisters are Loretta Young, Marjorie Weaver and Pauline Moore, while the men are Joel McCrea, David Niven and Stuart Erwin. The picture, which runs through Wednesday at the Ohio, opens tonight at a midnight matinee.

"Lord Jeff."

Two of the most popular juvenile players on the screen are cast in the same picture again for "Lord Jeff" has Freddie Bartholomew, who is growing up, and Mickey Rooney. They were together in that screen classic, "Captains Courageous," and perhaps because of the appeal of this first picture they were again cast in a sea picture. "Lord Jeff" is the tight of an unknown and homeless boy to find a place for himself. He not only has to learn the rules of sportsmanship and honesty but he has to live down a bad reputation. A freighter crew stricken with Bubonic plague in mid-ocean provides him with a way to work out his destiny. The story is essentially one of boyhood but with an appeal for adults. It comes to the Madison Sunday for three days.

"Marines Are Here."

A bill made up of two features and two special short subjects will be offered at the Majestic over the holiday, starting tomorrow. The features are "Marines Are Here" with Gordon Oliver and June Travis, and "The Show Goes On." The latter is an English made picture, with Anna Neagle, Tullio Carminati and Leslie Banks, all great favorites of the English screen. The first is a comedy of leathernecks and sweethearts and the second is a dramatic story of circus life. A Laurel and Hardy comedy, "End of a Perfect Day" and a short entitled "County Hospital," round out the four-unit program.

"Yank at Oxford."

Two romantic comedies are scheduled for the Ritz for Sunday and Monday, both of them big casts. Robert Taylor has one of his best characters in "Yank at Oxford," the story of a middle western college boy who wins a scholarship to Oxford, England. Lionel Barrymore and Maureen O'Sullivan are seen as a small town American editor, and an English girl who teaches the American youth a thing or two that he couldn't have learned at the university. Leslie Howard and Joan Blondell in "Stand-In" is an amusing picture behind scenes in Hollywood. A financial wizard from New York City comes to Hollywood to learn why pictures don't pay greater dividends and meets a little stand-in who takes a hand in his education.

MARKET SPREE STEAMS AHEAD AT RAPID PACE

Unusually Heavy Saturday Buying Brings Gains Of Up To Four Points.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Fresh buying fuel steamed up the stock market today in one of the broadest Saturday sprints for many months and, despite heavy profit selling, leading industrials climbed to 4 points.

Exceptionally large overnight purchasing orders jammed the board-rooms at the start. Blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares changed hands in rapid succession.

The pace slowed later and prices gave way moderately, but the readiness with which offerings were absorbed soon attracted additional support and most favorites finished around their best.

Attendance in commission houses was much larger than for the ordinary week-end proceedings. Numerous traders cancelled plans to get an early start on the 2½-day holiday.

Not only did wire brokers report unusual interest on the accumulating side from all parts of the country, but participation from overseas helped to swell the day's volume.

Transfers approximated 1,300,000 shares.

News from business and industry was again bright in spots.

Clues to general betterment were seen in another boost of the steel scrap quotation at Pittsburgh and in an additional lift for export copper to the best figure in nearly 2 months.

Carrier bonds displayed renewed strength and other listed loans were in demand. Commodity markets, with the exception of cotton and grains, were closed. Cotton futures, though, exhibited further ascending tendencies. Grains were hesitant.

Girl Scouts Take Fresh Air Camp For Own Use

The former Richland County Fresh Air Camp, located on the Diamond street extension, has been taken over by the Girl Scout organization and will be operated this summer as a camp for Girl Scouts.

It has been named Camp Tupelo, the Indian name for the sourgum trees that surround the attractive grounds. The camp will open Tuesday, with 70 girls registered, and will operate each Tuesday and Thursday for six weeks. The program also includes swimming every Wednesday morning at Liberty Park pool.

The camp program will include campcraft, nature groups, fire building, outdoor cooking, informal dramatic activities, singing and folk dancing, and at different times during the summer specialists in these subjects will come in to work with the girls. The program has been planned by Mrs. J. C. Gorman, chairman; Mrs. Russel Porch, camp director, and scout leaders.

Arrangements for special buses for transportation have been made with the Mansfield Transit company, and on Tuesday and Thursdays the bus will leave Fourth and Main at 9:30 a. m. and at 9 a. m. on Wednesdays.

The county fresh air camp, formerly used for children of tuberculosis contacts, was abandoned two years ago when the Christmas Health Seal funds were diverted to the County Tuberculosis association to finance the tuberculosis clinics at General hospital.

LEMKE'S SON TO WED

WASHINGTON—(INS)—William Lemke, jr., 24-year-old son of Rep. Lemke (R) North Dakota, will marry Miss Martha Slagel, 25, of Pomeroy, Ohio, on July 5 here, it was announced today.

'INCOMPETENCE' CHARGE HURLED

Board Members Deny Politics Has Any Part In Fight To Oust Robinson.

never adopted such resolutions."

Osbun produced a copy of a letter from the regional PWA office at Columbus in which R. E. Harrison, associate regional PWA director, said, in reference to the application for a federal grant, that "it appears that the prerogative of the board (Union rural) was in some manner usurped, and, in order to avoid further confusion, we are returning the forms to you with the request that if your board now desires to file an application, such action be taken at your earliest convenience."

Robinson admitted signing the application blank, but contended that Charles Marr, New Philadelphia architect who drafted plans for the proposed school, filled in the application and typed "Clerk of the Union rural board of education" under Robinson's name.

The county board passed a resolution asking County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott to investigate the accusations against the county schools head. However, the latter is on a vacation in Canada at present.

RITES HELD FOR M'CORMICK HEIR

Indians Move Body of Youth From Mountain Cliff.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—(INS)—Funeral services were to be held late today for 21-year-old Medill McCormick, who lost his life with a friend during an attempt to scale towering Sandia peak, some 20 miles from here.

The body of the young scion of a noted publishing family was found Thursday by a party of Indians on the north side of the peak. The ledge was approximately five miles from the spot on the oposite side of the mountain, where the body of McCormick's companion, Richard Whitmer, 20, was found a week ago Friday.

The body was brought here last night by a party of Indians and forest rangers.

PRE-HOLIDAY ACCIDENT WAVE TAKES 2 LIVES

3 Others Near Death, 12 Hurt In 6 Accidents In And Near City In 8-Hour Period.

of the serious condition of the persons involved.

The two deaths boost the county's traffic toll for 1938 to nine while at this same time last year 10 persons had lost their lives in traffic.

Here is a chronological report of the accidents:

Accident No. 1

The collision of three automobiles on U. S. route 42, two miles north of Mansfield brought death to two persons, both from Cleveland area.

The dead are:

Neil Thayer, age three months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell P. Thayer, Cleveland, who died in the General hospital of a fractured skull two hours after the accident.

John F. Weiland, 48, Nutwood farm, Wickliffe, Cleveland suburb, chauffeur employed by Mrs. Mildred Deveraux, widow of H. K. Deveraux, millionaire Cleveland sportsman, who died instantly of a skull fracture.

The three most seriously injured and in critical condition in the General hospital are:

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Belding, both 49, of Cleveland, parents of Mrs. Thayer, suffering from skull fractures.

Joseph Murray, 35, a fellow employe of Weiland's, also of Nutwood farm, chest injuries.

Others in the hospital, but in less serious condition are:

Mrs. Thayer, 30, fractured arm and lacerations. Condition fair.

Mrs. Friedrich Kinkel, 57, 366 Shepard road, Mansfield, fractured shoulder. Condition fair.

Mrs. Mathias Pamer, 49, R. D. 2, Mansfield, fractured arm. Condition good.

Joseph Pamer, 13, scalp lacerations. Condition good.

The Thayer baby was hurled from the arms of his mother when the car in which she was riding with her husband, was struck almost head-on by the northbound Devereaux car which was operated by Weiland.

Attempts To Pass, Skids.

Weiland, who was driving his fellow employe, Murray to Nutwood farm, the Devereaux estate in Wickliffe, was instantly killed when he attempted to pass another car in the heavy rain, skidded and crashed into the Thayer machine.

The third auto involved was that of Mrs. Margaret Baloi, 28, of R. D. 2, Mansfield, who was driving behind the Thayer car and struck the wreckage. She escaped injury as did two of her passengers Mathias Pamer, 56, and his 10-year-old daughter, Emily, all of R. D. 2, Mansfield. Mrs. Pamer and her son, Joseph, were injured.

Thayer, a Cleveland merchant, was en route to Mt. Sterling, 23 miles southwest of Columbus, to visit a sister over the holiday. Besides his wife, Elsie, and their child, others in the machine were Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Belding of Cleveland, Mrs. Thayer's parents.

Accident No. 2

At 7:30 p. m., three hours later, two autos collided less than a mile north of the first accident when the cars skidded on the slippery pavement, sending two more to General hospital.

In the hospital with lacerations and bruises and reported in good condition are Mrs. C. M. Chatlain, 42, R. D. 2, Mansfield, and Mrs. Louis Spaeth, 48, of Oklahoma City, Okla.

State highway patrolmen who have not been able to obtain complete details of the accident said that the two cars driven by Mrs. Chatlain's son, Edward, 19, and Louis Spaeth, of Oklahoma City, had apparently skidded and rammed each other almost head-on. Neither of the drivers were injured.

Accident No. 3

Twenty minutes later at 7:50 p. m. the state highway patrol reported a collision on U. S. route 30, at Jeromesville, which involved two out of state cars. None of the five pasengers were injured although the machines were badly damaged.

State Highway Patrolman C. B. Tieben said a machine driven by Mrs. B. Landis of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., who was accompanied by her husband, skidded on a hill and collided with a car operated by James Phillips, Marshalltown, Ia. His wife and nine-year-old daughter, Barbara Jean were uninjured.

Accident No. 4

At almost the same time Mansfield police reported that cars driven by David Vanderbilt, Lexington, and Fred W. Topfer, Cleveland, collided at the intersection of South Main and Second street, when one of the drivers skidded through the intersection. Neither driver was hurt but both cars were damaged.

Accident No. 5

The same intersection, an hour later, was the scene of another accident when R. C. Nowling, Cincinnati, and Gerald A. Bean, 22 Ruth avenue, collided. Police said Nowling skidded on the wet pavement and ran into the side of Bean's machine, damaging the right side of the car.

Accident No. 6

At 2 a. m. today police said an unidentified driver apparently lost control of his truck and skidded into a tree at the corner of Park avenue west and Helen avenue, then went up over the curb and tore down a 12-foot sign at a filling station on the northeast corner. They said the truck had been towed to the garage and the driver taken home.

HALTS HOT-MIX JOB PAYMENTS

Columbus Judge Terms Paving Projects Awards Fraud On State In Decision.

for "hot mix" highway materials.

In the restraining order the court found:

That "in direct violation of the letter and spirit of the law" the highway department listed the name of every prospective bidder on state work in a "black book" which was made available for public inspection.

That an organization of contractors operated to "stifle competition" on state work.

That an analysis of a proper price for "hot mix" materials, made by Harry A. Sparks, former highway department engineer whose position was abolished recently, was "fair and complete."

That action by the highway department in splitting a Butler county project into two separate projects was not warranted.

That Cliff W. Simpson, secretary of the Hot Mix Bituminous Industry of Ohio, Inc., was able to boast that association members would be given state contracts before bids were opened.

On the subject of awarding contracts without competitive bidding, the court declared: "Whether that conduct was dictated from without or from within is immaterial, as the fraud upon the state was as great one way as the other."

Earlier this week, Governor Davey's highway board of inquiry reported that it found evidence of collusion among bidders on highway projects and of irregularities in the highway department.

Judge Scarlett referred to the bituminous resurfacing program as the "competition restriction program."

"There was no direct evidence of any corrupt agreement, but there was circumstantial evidence of collusion, which was at least constructively fraudulent," he wrote.

"One of the distinctive claims this case can make is the unusual record of the conspiracy at work afforded by the 'bulletins' of the authorized agent of the conspirators, while he was engaged in furthering and promoting the unlawful object.

"The fact of agency attaches responsibility for these bulletins to each and every member of the industry.

"A more complete stifling of competition cannot well be imagined. These bulletins clearly indicate an express or implied agreement or understanding.

"So assured has the manager become of the success of their operawith a boast that the nine projects tions that he closes the bulletins set for October 13 'are already in the bag.' "

Judge Scarlett contended that special meetings of contractors arranged for the nights before bids "meant more agreements or arrangements as to bids—all to the state's great disadvantage."

Judge Scarlett said the hot mix

Comment on Proposal for Tax League; Why Feel Sorry for Countess Babs?

—By JANE WILLIAMS

THE MOST interesting suggestion that came to this desk this week is that of a Tax league in Mansfield, and I'm giving you the idea as it was presented to me. I'd like to know what you think of it.

As I understand it, such a league would function something like a lobbying group. The idea is fascinating. All of the high-powered money groups have found* lobbyists invaluable in getting legislation favorable to their interests enacted; the president of the United States named a personal lobbyist, "Uncle Charlie" West from hereabouts. Why not a lobby group for the taxpayers? We've never had one, because we've been pretty dumb.

A tax league is a community group made up of disgruntled taxpayers; men and women who not only are aroused to what is happening to them, but intend to do something about it.

Every time a new tax measure is proposed, a committee from the league would examine the proposition from all angles, make a careful analysis—from THEIR standpoint, for a change — and the league would either give its approval or start lobbying against it, shouting it from the housetops, through the newspapers, with hand bills, and with community meetings.

FOR instance, the proposed relief levies totalling three mills which will be presented to voters at the August primaries: the league would first ascertain the why and the wherefore. Their report might go something like this:

City and township officials are faced with the necessity of providing relief funds in addition to what they are already receiving from the state, and they believe that if the money isn't raised there will be riots at the relief station.

They have the power to levy only one kind of a tax—a real estate tax, and then only after the voters have approved it. So they turn to real estate, big and little home owners, just as municipal governments have been turning for years. "We know it isn't fair," officials cry, "but what else can we do? We've got to have more money."

TOWNSHIP trustees, sincere and bewildered, have $14,400 a year for relief purposes; they are asking for a one-mill levy on real estate in Mansfield and the township which is valued—or will be valued with the new appraisal just being completed — at $58,000,000. That means an additional $58,000 or a total of $72,400 a year for township relief.

The city receives about $54,600 a year from the state for relief purposes (that is, right now it averages that; they have received more and probably will again when the legislature gets around to it), and city officials are asking for a two-mill levy on the city's $50,000,000 worth of homes, which means $100,000 added to $54,600 and there you have, for township and city—all of it encompassed within what is generally regarded as Mansfield—$227,000 for relief in this not-very-big city.

And how will the home owner pay for it? If his home is appraised at $6,000 on the tax list, he'll pay an additional $18 a year, a total of $110.40 for his real estate and relief tax; if his home is valued at $10,000, he'll pay an additional $30, or $184, for the year, not counting special assessments.

ALL of this doesn't include the money we'll spend for WPA projects, which should take several hundred families off the relief lists; nor does it recognize the fact that if the state legislature provides a permanent relief program, and assesses new taxes to cover it, we'll be paying DOUBLE for our relief program in Mansfield and Madison township.

Taxpayers, poor sheep, are just beginning to wonder what taxes are all about. A tax league might help them to understand.

What do you think of it?

"LIKED your wedding anniversary column Saturday", writes Everyday Guy, "because it was real news. It was the first favorable mention of matrimony I've seen in print for some time. All you ever see in the papers is divorce, alienation of affection, love nests, and property settlements. It was nice to know that people are still living together normally. We were married on that day, too, and have been quite happy, but we sorta keep it to ourselves because it seemed so old fashioned, and out of step with the times."

Matrimonial news is like airplane travel — it's only the crashes that make the headlines. So don't be cynical. There are loads of us old timers.

BARBARA HUTTON'S anxiety to become a citizen of the United States again, in order to gain full charge of her son, leaves most of us a little cold and unsympathetic. If she gave up her country and her citizenship in order to dodge taxes on money made in this country, most of us don't give a darn whether her son is educated in Denmark, England or China.

Bill Puts Ohio Highway Workers On Salary

ASSEMBLY OK'S ELIMINATION OF HOURLY WAGES

Measure Sent To Davey Draws Fire From Hurley; $100-$135 Set As Pay.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Jammed through by support of organized labor, a bill putting highway department laborers on monthly salaries instead of hourly wages passed the Ohio legislature early today in closing hours of the special poor relief session.

Road laborers under the bill, which goes to the governor after house concurrence in minor senate amendments, would receive from $100 to $135 monthly for a normal 40-hour week but would be deprived of overtime for emergency and disaster work.

Opponents charged the measure would increase highway maintenance expenses because the laborers would be paid whether they worked or not, pointing out that weather conditions preclude road operations on many days each year.

Tacked on Bill.

The highway laborer provision first appeared in the house late yesterday afternoon as an amendment to a bill increasing salaries for state highway patrolmen. Given the blessing of the Ohio Federation of Labor on the house floor, it was passed easily.

A senate committee was given the bill under suspension of the rules and held a midnight session to recommend its passage. It next won the senate's approval without debate.

The bill also increased salaries of highway patrolmen $5 a month but, in addition, ordered their maintenance allowances paid directly to them. The existing law provides a salary of $110 and maintenance expenses of $45 monthly; the new measure makes it a flat salary of $160 monthly.

Patrolmen's salaries also would be increased $5 a month for each year of service up to four. Proportionage increases were provided for the officers, the superintendent excepted.

Sen. William F. Hurley (D-Lorain) sought unsuccessfully to block the highway labor measure contending the department's personnel "is being used for political purposes."

In an impassioned speech, Hurley declared:

"I know one man who has been on the highway department payroll for three years without doing a lick of work except that he is the private driver for a political heeler and a corrupt political heeler—B. N. Harris, a Lorain county Democratic leader."

Up and Down THE STREET

Arliss Porter, Masonic "biggie" is all excited about the pinochle hand he held in a three-handed game at the Mystic club yesterday noon. It was a "double family," which, Porter explains for the benefit of non-pinochle players, is the two aces, kings, queens, jacks and 10's of a suit. He said the chances of holding such a hand are about one in 300,000. Needless to say, it was the best hand of the deal—and of the game, as well.

With the prospect of a parachute jump into Lake Erie looming in the near future, Gretchen Reighard, Mansfield's air-minded waitress, is planning some rehearsal sessions off the high diving board at the Liberty park swimming pool. Barely able to swim, Gretchen is going to spend some evenings at the park diving with her cork "skirt" over her bathing suit. "I had a narrow escape once when I nearly fell into a lake near Youngstown, and I'm not taking any more chances," she says. The skirt serves as a life preserver after the parachute jumper gets rid of the 'chute.

FIGHT BREWS OVER EXTENT OF INQUIRY

Senator King Of Utah Opposes 'Flying Squadrons' Studying Records Of Industry.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Rumblings of an approaching contest over the scope of the administration's monopoly investigation were heard today as the joint congressional and executive committee mapped plans of procedure.

Possibility of an open flareup arose when certain members of the congressional group indicated they will propose that the committee drop plans for additional investigation and turn to material gathered throughout the years in formulating new anti-monopoly legislation.

Map Opposition.

Also, there was a strong indication that any proposal to send out "flying squadrons," of subcommittees to search the files and records of a business or an industry would be opposed by members of the congressional group.

Senator King (D) of Utah, said he was opposed to "roving commissions," and served notice he would oppose subcommittees for that purpose.

"If it becomes important enough to issue subpoenaes and take testimony I think the hearings ought to be heard here in Washington," he added.

King is a member of the group proposing that the committee draw on material already assembled by previous congressional and executive investigations as a basis for anti-monopoly legislation.

Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, long-standing enemy of the "trusts," was represented as favoring that the committee start at once to consider means of curbing monopoly. Borah and Senator O'Mahoney (D) of Wyoming, chairman of the committee, introduced an anti-monopoly bill at the last session of congress which was based on information already gathered by congress and executive departments. It would provide the federal government with power to license all industries engaged in interstate commerce to enforce strict anti-monopoly regulations.

UNEMPLOYED TO HAVE GALA DAY

All-Day Outing Arranged For Tomorrow At North Park By Workers Alliance.

A gala day, arranged for the families of unemployed Mansfielders, and families of WPA workers, is scheduled for tomorrow at North Lake park, under the auspices of the Workers Alliance, and assisting groups.

There will be ball games, races and contests of all kinds and all ages—with special emphasis on entertainment for the youngsters (personal note to the latter: there'll be lots of ice cream). There'll be speaking, too, but it won't be so so long as to interfere with the fun. Mayor Claude M. Hunter, Attorney George W. Biddle, Joseph Scanlon and William Bell are on the speaking program.

Warren Wheelock, president of the Workers Alliance, union of WPA employes, in charge of the picnic, said merchants had cooperated generously in supplying food, ice cream, candy and prizes for the day. The picnic will start at 10 a. m. and last all day.

"We've tried to arrange one happy, exciting day for the people who don't have so much fun, and we think we've succeeded. There'll be plenty to eat and plenty to do. We'd like those who can to bring their lunch, but for those who can't there'll be plenty to eat," Wheelock said today.

Assisting the Alliance are the Friendly House, the WPA recreation division and Boy and Girl Scouts.

Four ball teams will be in action during the day—the Steel Mill team, a colored team, and teams organized by the Alliance and the WPA recreation division.

Also invited to join in the picnic are families receiving assistance from the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America.

'DADDY DEAR' LETTER REVEALS MURDER VICTIM'S ILLICIT LOVE

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — King Gray, the 42-year-old cameraman who was considered a "mild, timid family man" by fellow studio workers, posed as a single man when he dated Miss Frances Bleakley, police said today. Miss Bleakley was the author of the "Daddy Dear" letter found beside Gray's body Thursday.

Police Captain M. J. Jones believes Gray was murdered, probably by a jealous person. But whether he was killed by a woman jealous of Gray's friendship for Miss Bleakley, or a man who resented the couple's romance has not been determined.

Miss Bleakley, 29, whose home is in New Castle, Pa., was questioned there yesterday. She told police she was a friend of the Gray family, but Gray's widow said she never had heard of her. Dr. S. N. Bleakley, her brother, a Wildwood dentist, said he saw Gray frequently when the cameraman and his sister visited his home.

"Frances brought Gray often to our home," Dr. Bleakley said. Both he and Frances mentioned that he was not married. Frances did not live with us but she was out frequently for week-ends and Gray often came out and had dinner with us."

Miss Bleakley attended the University of Southern California. She worked in a Hollywood department store and two months ago went east.

Gray's body was found in his coupe which was parked in front of the postoffice here.

SETS DEADLINE

Resurfacing Contract Calls for Finish of Work By Aug. 15.

Resurfacing of approximately 20 miles of four state highways in Richland county for which a contract was awarded a week ago to the Ohio Road Improvement company, Columbus, must be completed by Aug. 15, according to requirements set up by the state highway department.

The projects, which will cost $29,857, include route 13 north from Mansfield, 3.94 miles; route 96, between Olivesburg and Shelby, 4.70 miles; route 30-S, from Ontario to Richland-Crawford county line, 5.26 miles, and route 61, between Shelby and Plymouth, 6.37 miles.

The Purdy Construction company, Mansfield, which was awarded two contracts for repairs in Guernsey and Muskingum counties, must complete the Guernsey county job in 60 days and the Muskingum project in 30 days. The contracts total $4,427.

GEN. JOHNSON:

Gettysburg Minor Clash Beside World War Battles But Equally as Important

—By HUGH S. JOHNSON

BETHANY BEACH, Del.: Compared with many battles of the World war, Gettysburg was just a skirmish. The line was only about seven miles long, whereas the western front alone stretched from the Vosges mountains to the North sea.

Counting service of supply and lines of communications, a single American division in 1918 accounted for 50,000 men—two-thirds as many as Lee's whole army. A single battalion of artillery in the Somme drumfire shot in an hour more ammunition than both armies in the famous artillery duel preceding Pickett's charge.

Yet there was no day in the World war and perhaps no day in the world's history more decisive than the last day at Gettysburg. Something that is frequently overlooked in talking about the "high-water mark," at the "umbrella-shaped clump of trees" where Pickett broke is that, on the next day, Vicksburg fell before Grant, and the Confederacy was cut in two. It was the blackest day in Confederate history.

When I was a cadet at West Point we studied the Battle of Gettysburg from the first movement of Lee's army out of Virginia to his masterly retreat across the Potomac. Just before that, the battles studied were Bonaparte's first Italian campaign and his campaign of Marengo.

It was the difference between following an expert chess player and watching a blindfold game. Napoleon selected his field, sucked his enemy onto it and defeated them in detail. No northern general selected the almost impregnable position of Gettysburg. They were just blunderingly driven back on it by blundering Confederates.

In spite of their superiority in supplies, numbers and position they might have got another licking and it was no fault of federal generalship that they didn't. Lee didn't have Jeb Stewart and his cavalry. Jackson was dead. Jeb had gone off on a foolish raid which deprived Lee of his cavalry screen. Longstreet delayed.

I have always thought that the real key to the outcome has been minimized. On the last day, Jeb Stewart, with his cavalry concentrated, at last turned up several miles in rear of the Union line. Meade had an inferior force of cavalry and a few guns out there—and they were withdrawing. The Confederate plan was to bring Stewart in from the rear as Pickett charged.

As Stewart's massed raiders in columns of platoons advanced at a trot, they were charged in flank by an inferior force led by the impetuous and much-maligned Custer.

It was one of the fiercest and most spectacular cavalry charges in history. At the point of impact, men, sabers and horses were tossed in the air. It shattered Stewart's cavalry. I have always thought it saved the battle for Meade.

BELLVILLE SPAN OPENS TONIGHT

Engineer Announces Opening of $47,000 Bridge to Traffic.

Traffic will flow over the new $47,000 bridge on route 13 at Bellville for the first time tonight, Boyd Wierman, state highway superintendent in Richland county, said today.

With the exception of a few minor details, the structure is complete and has been approved by state and federal highway officials, Wierman said.

Ceremonies officially dedicating the bridge will be held later this month.

The bridge, which was built by the Purdy Construction company, Mansfield, in approximately six months, is 146 feet long and spans Clear Fork creek at the north corporation limit of the village.

OPTION UPHELD

Court Rules for Conductor of Mine Fire Area Tours.

NEW LEXINGTON — (AP) — Howard Essex won a victory for his "50 cents a head" tours of the New Straitsville mine fire area when Common Pleas Judge U. S. McGonagle upheld his option on lands owned by Percy Angle, "10 cents a trip" competitor of Essex.

Judge McGonagle directed that Angle grant Essex a lease under terms of the option.

Essex, who saw commercial possibilities in the fire, which has raged underground for more than 50 years, had protested to the court that Angle was conducting visitors for a fifth of his fee and was advertising: "Don't pay 50 cents and be disappointed."

'GOD' SUBJECT OF LESSON-SERMON

We Will Rejoice in Thy Salvation, Says Golden Text.

"God" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

The Golden Text is: "We will rejoice in thy salvation, and in the name of our God we will set up our banners" (Psalms 20:5.)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord: . . . And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might" (Deuteronomy 6:4,5.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy: "Spirit, Life, Truth, Love, combine as one, — and are the Scriptural names for God. All substance, intelligence, wisdom, being, immortality, cause, and effect belong to God. These are His attributes, the eternal manifestations of the infinite divine Principle, Love" (p. 275.)

During the church service Sunday at 10:30 a. m., the group will sing as the anthem, "The Recessional," by Bekoven, and for the offertory Mrs. Anglin will sing, "The Tears of God," by Mowrey. Mrs. A. L. Twitchell, organist, will play two numbers, "Intermezzo," by Mascagni, and "Pomp and Circumstance," by Elgar.

Rev. David N. Roller, the pastor, will have as his sermon subject, "The Power of a Great Heritage."

BAY STATE CUTS TRAFFIC DEATHS

Public Insistence on Careful Driving Seen as Reason for Safety Award.

(By United Press)

CENTRE LOVELL, Me.—Public insistence on careful driving resulted in Massachusetts' winning first honors in the 1937 national highway safety contest, according to Frank A. Goodwin, motor vehicles registrar.

The Bay State official told delegates to the Eastern States Motor Vehicle Administrators conference here that "you cannot get any better government or any better law enforcement than public opinion demands."

He said Massachusetts residents for many years have demanded strict and impartial enforcement of motor vehicle laws.

"As a result of this attitude," he said, "the courts, police and all law-enforcement officers in Massachusetts perform their duties strictly, with a minimum of favoritism or 'fixing'."

He attributed the attitude to continuous press and radio activity "in the interest of safety."

Goodwin believes such public opinion a great aid in solving traffic problems through the familiar "three E's — Engineering, Education and Enforcement."

He praised the teaching of highway safety to Massachusetts school children, attributing to such trainng he annual reduction of child fatalities from 260 in 1923, with less than half the present total of machines registered, to last year's low record of 115.

SETS UP 82 JOB LAW DIVISIONS

Ohio to Have Unemployment Compensation Schedules Ready in September.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Ohio's unemployment compensation commission will set up beginning in September, Chairman Charles S. Leasure said today, an organization of 82 local offices throughout the state for handling benefit payments after Jan. 1.

"The plan for establishing local offices where all workers covered by the unemployment compensation law will register for work and file claims for benefits has been submitted to the social security board and the U. S. unemployment service for study and approval," Leasure said.

"Although prospective sites for location of these offices have been surveyed in nearly all parts of the state, none can be decided upon until the expansion plans have been approved.

"A personnel of 1,200 to 1,500 will be required for operating the offices, which will serve all 88 counties. All counties sufficiently industrialized may be assured a local office."

Meanwhile, the state civil service commission awaited allocation of funds from the social security board to finance examinations for the new jobs.

Commissioner Ralph Emmons said $30,000 had been requested for this purpose but that a technicality made this unavailable at present. Some funds were allocated, he said, but a stipulation required that they be used in June, which was not possible.

ROTARY INSTALLS AT LOUDONVILLE

LOUDONVILLE—G. H. Volpitto was installed as president of the Loudonville Rotary club at a recent meeting. He succeeds Fred Yuncker.

Other officers who were installed are J. F. McClure, vice president; Clarence Culler, secretary; Howard Arnholt, chairman of the program committee, and C. F. Heyde, sergeant-at-arms.

HEADS YOUTHS

BUCYRUS—Richard Brooks of Mt. Zion was elected to head the Crawford County Youth circle to succeed Robert Beal of Mt. Zion, when the organization met Thursday night at the Bucyrus armony. Raymond Hoover of Leesville was elected vice president and Ruth Taylor of Lykens was elected secretary.

New officers will be installed at a picnic and business session at Heise park Galion, July 13.

SKUNK WINS

'Defeats' Officers Who Tried to Tempt It With Chicken Heads.

SAN FRANCISCO —(AP)— The skunk that took over the cellar of Mrs. John Conci's home will have no more trouble with Policemen Frank Kennedy and William King.

The officers tried to entice it out with chicken heads tied on a string. The skunk was suspicious.

The officers retreated too late.

TVA, MUNICIPAL POWER PLANT SUPPLY CURRENT TO SAME TOWN

(By United Press)

GUNTERSVILLE, Ala.—A municipal distribution system using Tennessee Valley Authority power and a private utility are competing in Guntersville for the first time in the history of the government's venture in electricity.

With proponents of the TVA-supplied municipal system claiming more than 95 per cent of the town's electric consumers, the Alabama Power company announced it has "no plans for discontinuing service" here.

The municipal plant began supplying power in May at rates approximately 30 per cent lower than those charged by the power company. Financed by a private bond issue of $130,000 the system is expected by city authorities to pay for itself within 10 years.

"Practically everybody except employes of the power company and their relatives have switched over to our system," said Dr. E. H. Couch, mayor of Guntersville.

The private utility, however, apparently has no intention of quitting the field in favor of the TVA-powered system.

"The company holds a valid franchise in Guntersville which has many years to run," the power company said in an advertisement in the Guntersville paper.

"It has furnished good and satisfactory service over a period of years. It has endeavored to treat its customers fairly and has made many staunch friends in the community.

"It appreciates their patronage and support and the company has no plans for discontinuing its service in the community."

Mayor Couch said the municipality repeatedly attempted to purchase the power company's facilities for distribution of electricity here, but that the company refused to set a price.

The power company has been operating in Guntersville for 23 years and previous to the opening of the municipal plant, supplied service to approximately 800 customers here.

In some instances, lines of the private utility and the municipally-owned plant parallel each other on the city's streets.

Alabama Power is a subsidiary of Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, major rival of the TVA in the government-private utilities controversy. Negotiations are under way for purchase of the corporation's holdings in the vast TVA-served area.

SATURDAY JULY 2, 1938.

Drive carefully tomorrow and Monday—or, better still, leave the car in the garage.

An astronomer expresses belief that inhabitants of Mars are trying to reach the Earth. Can't somebody warn 'em?

A city tax of 2 per cent on their gross receipts would be ruinous, moan the New York bookmakers—the mere suggestion causing severe pain in their joints.

The Year's Most Dangerous Week-End.

THE patriotic significance of Independence day, in recent years, has been almost lost sight of in the feeling of dread of the accidents and deaths that turn the holiday into a mass slaughter.

And the frightful thing about the whole business is that a very large percentage of the casualties and fatalities are caused by carelessness, recklessness or over-indulgence in intoxicants.

Emphasizing the fact that the annual July accident toll is greater than in any other month in the year, and that a large part of this toll is associated with celebration of the Fourth, the National Safety Council asks every citizen to use greater care in driving, swimming, boating and other holiday activities—and NOT TO USE EXPLOSIVES OR FIREWORKS.

The council suggests six general rules to avert holiday tragedy:

1.—Start early on your holiday trip. Give yourself plenty of time to get there and back by driving moderately. Sixty-one per cent of fatal traffic accidents occur after dark.

2.—Watch out for sunburn! It creeps up on you and can be dangerous. A little of it at a time is the best way.

3.—Use common sense in the water. Wait an hour after eating. Be sure of the depth. Know that a lifeguard is handy.

4.—Don't use fireworks!

5.—Don't drive if you drink.

6.—Take it easy. Get back safe and sound. Be alive on the Fifth!

In Erie, Pa., yesterday, a drive was started to prevent use of fireworks in the city—after fourteen children had been treated for burns. The situation in Erie is similar to that in Mansfield, sale of fireworks being banned inside the city, but roadside stands selling fireworks and explosives just outside the city limits.

Children Visit Penitentiary.

AT COLUMBUS today several hundred boys and girls—members of the Junior Safety League—were shown through the Ohio penitentiary.

This is a good idea. It should be a part of every child's education to learn something, by actual observation, about penal institutions and their purposes.

Penal institutions are not attractive. The idea of being locked up in one of them is abhorrent to any normal child or adult.

While only a small percentage of children will later in life be so unfortunate as to be committed to a penal institution for some wrong act, it is only fair that all of them should know what life is like inside prison walls.

Might it not be arranged that at some time during the high school course, all young people be given opportunity to inspect a penal institution? Some of them might thus be inspired to work toward improvement of the present penal system.

Sectional Color Preferences.

PSYCHOLOGISTS as well as stylists should be interested in a study made of color preferences by one of the automobile companies.

It found that all but two of the 27 states east of the Mississippi river prefer black cars to any other color. The exceptions are Florida and Alabama, where black was respectively second and third choice. Black is preferred also by eight of the ten largest cities. Next to black, the East mostly likes blues and grays.

West of the Mississippi, preferences are for green in the Rocky Mountain area and tan and red in the Pacific Coast states.

It would be interesting to make a similar canvass of color preference in clothing and other merchandise, and see whether they would fall into the same regional patterns. If so, it might help to simplify some marketing problems.

Many Things to See In Ohio.

OHIO is so "close home" that many motorists almost entirely overlook the possibility of spending a pleasant and profitable week or two touring this state.

In fact, it takes such an attractively done booklet as "Let's Explore Ohio," just issued by the Standard Oil company, to bring realization of the many places of interest that can be found within a short drive from Mansfield or that can be conveniently reached by a week-end trip, with an over-night stop at some especially picturesque spot.

Looking through this booklet you get the idea that for scenic beauty, diversification of attractions and places of historical and educational interest, Ohio is hard to beat.

Diary of Vacation Trip.

MAYBE the plan of keeping a diary is more general than is realized. Time was when many people kept a record of daily happenings of interest, so that they might have these reminders to look over in later years. Surprising how the interest in such things grows as time passes.

A vacation trip, in particular, opens a fine field of opportunity for even briefly recording places visited, impressions gained and interesting happenings of each day.

Such a trip record, recently made by Mansfield vacationers, completely outlines daily experiences, places at which stops were made, people seen, and, finally, to the sensations felt when it was realized that the car was about to turn over.

The trip was interesting—the record of it, in diary form, will later be regarded as invaluable. Try keeping a diary of your next trip—you'll find it worth-while.

And then again, the savages probably defended cannibalism as being "human nature."

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

LONDON dispatches tell of growing revolt against Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and his government. But political observers do not look for his immediate downfall. There is no one to succeed him—no one on the horizon.

This evidently is a world-wide condition, as to the political leaders of nations. It exists in the United States, party leaders are bewailing — but in the United States a tradition prevails against a third term. Thus a new leader "must" be found.

"Unpardonable".

The British also have their traditions. And that tradition points to the downfall of Chamberlain—eventually. He has done several "unpardonable" things, in the view of the British. He has permitted British shipping to be intimidated, for the first time in several centuries. (And Britain lives only by the lifetime of its shipping.) And he has tried to make peaceful bargains with dictators whom the average British citizen looks upon as a threat to democracy at home. Then, as if to drive home this fear, the Chamberlain government made the colossal error of threatening imprisonment to a member of parliament for refusing to divulge "secret" information concerning anti-aircraft guns. The member used some of the information in a question he submitted to the government (the cabinet) in the customary manner.

The member, no less than a son-in-law of Winston Churchill, a Conservative named Duncan Sandys, was trying to show that the new anti-craft guns were not what was expected of them.

With a sudden show of the iron hand of the Official Secrets act, Sandys was summoned to appear as a reservise officer before a military court. Previously he had been warned by Attorney General Sir Donald Somervell, upon the instigation of the minister for war, Leslie Hore-Belisha, that unless he divulged the source of his information, he could be prosecuted and imprisoned up to two years.

Saved—and Why.

The disclosure of this in parliament almost swept the Conservative majority from under Prime Minister Chamberlain. It would have, except for one thing—there was no one ready to step into his place.

The Labor opposition is waiting patiently, believing that Chamberlain will get into deeper and deeper trouble, and that his government eventually will fall, a general election will become a necessity, and Labor will win.

The leader of the Laborites, Clement R. Attlee, however, has not yet captured the popular imagination. And Chamberlain has a strong campaign cry, in spite of the sinking of British merchantmen in Spanish waters—"we are at peace". It is similar to the Woodrow Wilson slogan in the 1916 election, "He kept us out of war." Some British critics have mentioned this, and express the fear that Chamberlain's efforts at maintaining peace may end as President Wilson's did in 1917. But Chamberlain has the advantage of retrospect. Yet—his critics charge—retrospect is not enough. The modern political leader must have foresight, too. And Chamberlain is of the group that fears the future, and the evolutionary trends of today. He is trying to maintain the status quo.

Shipstead's Rail Plan Analyzed

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Senator Henrik Shipstead's plan for railroad rehabilitation has been referred to as a form of pump-priming—not by the senator but by commentators on his suggestion. Not that these commentators necessarily are adverse critics; some of them believe in pump-priming and speak of the Shipstead proposal as an excellent way of doing it. But they do call it pump-priming.

It does not seem to me a bit like pump-priming.

In pump-priming there is not the least bit of nutriment. It is more like a stimulant. It has approximately the same relation to the Shipstead scheme that a "shot of licker" has to a series of doses of cod liver oil. A little "licker" may be all right in an emergency, but, after all, it is an artificiality, and sometimes it has a nasty reaction. Cod liver oil legitimately builds up a run-down system. Its purveyors say it does, anyway. I never took any.

WHAT IS MATTER?

Well, if ever a system was run-down our railroad system is. We all know that. The roads themselves admit and perhaps exaggerate it.

Their distress is importantly responsible for our recent economic tie-up.

What, then, is the matter with the roads?

Principally, their equipment is hopelessly out of date. If improved, the roads' operating costs could be cut. Perhaps they could reduce rates, thus getting more business—and maintain wages.

But they cannot make the required improvements; they have not the money.

WHY NOT USE JUNK?

In short:

The roads have a lot of obsolete rolling stock on hand that they cannot operate advantageously and yet cannot replace—being too poverty-stricken.

Still, this ancient stuff has a market value as junk. Illustratively, there is in it a huge quantity of steel—dandy raw material for countries now engaged in armament construction. Fancy prices are being paid for such scrap in Europe and the Orient.

Senator Shipstead's theme is: "Why not utilize our railroads' otherwise useless supply of it?"

JUNK VALUE.

Parenthetically:

I do not intend to imply that the Minnesota Farmer-Laborite would condone armament-building.

He points out only that a used-up freight car has about $100 worth of value left in it, and the number of such freight cars is legion. The hint that these derelict cars are militarily available is my own, not the senator's.

TRADE TO GOVERNMENT?

Getting back to the senatorial plan:

Worn-out automobiles can be traded in for new ones, on a percentage basis.

Why not allow railroads to trade in worn-out rolling stock? Trade it in to whom? Why, to the government. The government can get its investment out of those used-up cars—by building them into warships if necessary.

SHIPSTEAD'S PROGRAM.

From the trade-in of their used-up equipment the roads will have established a modicum of credit to enable them to re-equip.

For the new rolling stock the government will have to put up the money of course. But it will have the old junk, as value-in-hand in the meantime. And also it will retain title to the new cars until the roads have paid for them on the installment plan, just as the auto dealers retain titles to their cars until they are fully paid for.

That is the Shipstead program.

GOVERNMENTALIZATION?

It sounds to me like sound business.

My guess would be that, if adopted, the program would lead ultimately to governmentalization of transportation.

I would not consider that an unmitigated curse, either.

I have seen other countries where these natural monopolies are governmentally run — and they are at least as well conducted as they are here, where we only tinker with them.

Timely Editorial

Economic Miracles.

Behind all these recovery items, we guess, is simply a pervading and persistent belief that there is nothing so wrong with our economic order that it will not recover if given half a chance. The conviction never has been abandoned that the current "recession" is only an incident, even if an unpleasant one, of the major recovery trend.

There have been fears that government, by ill-chosen policies, would not give recovery its half-chance. These fears, no less real if somewhat exaggerated, doubtless have played their part in prolonging the slump.

Yet underlying them, has been always the irrepressible spirit of business enterprise, ready to respond with action to any glimmer of brightness on the economic horizon. It is that buoyancy, which we like to think of as typically American, that makes economic miracles come to pass.—Detroit News.

ALL of US

How About Grown-Ups?

IT'S MY OPINION—take it for what it's worth—that it is almost as harmful to center all of a family's attention upon the children in it as it is to neglect them completely.

Children may not agree with this—but did you ever notice how difficult it is to get the baby to sleep after he's had all the attention of three or four fond relatives for a couple of hours?

Too much attention, too much adult unselfishness is bad for children. Nor is it entirely fair to adults, either. In fact, it distorts life.

After all, although children are dear, important and indispensable, life is supposed to be adult and children, however fascinating, are far from grown-up . . I am aware, too, that nature seems to give most of her attention to children, to the preservation. Look about you in wild nature and you will see how callously, among the animals, she neglects the mature animals in favor of the newest generation. She had but one purpose, it seems, and that is to reproduce the species and she cares for little ones.

But adults, even fathers and mothers, cannot center their lives upon children without harming themselves. Children need food, health, play, interest, "advantages." But give them too much attention, too much supervision and they are miserable. So are the elders when they chain themselves so closely to children that they have little time for adult living left for themselves, . . . Nor has the child any child life. Guarded, shackled, checked, he is peevish, distorted and resentful.

Feel sorry for the child, if you wish, but grieve more for the foolish parent who thinks that by taking such watchful care, she can shape a child's life into perfection while she loses her own. The child that has had too much attention as a child becomes an adult who demands attention that cannot be compelled from others of his own age.

I know many parents who are aware of their own inner need to be their age. But I know a few who have forgotten that grown-ups are also important and who, thinking only of themselves as parents, turn their entire natures back toward childhood . . . and are proud of their own unselfishness . . . But if that's unselfishness, what we need is a little more intelligent selfishness.

What Happened?

A Week-End Summary of Current Events.

RECENT occurrences of national political significance have been emblazoned in such headlines as these:

Nye Leading Langer — This meant Gerald P. Nye, 45, a U. S. senator since 1925, was winning renomination in the North Dakota Republican primary. The state's two representatives, Usher Burdick and William Lemke, were renominated.

Gov. William Langer opposed Nye, and this was the primary's feature race. Nye and Langer have quarrelled often in the last five years and they fought this campaign mainly on state issues. Nye had been endorsed by two ardent New Deal senators.

Rep. Snell Will Retire — This meant Republicans will have a new leader in the house of representatives in the next congress. Joseph W. Martin, 53, of Massachusetts, has been mentioned for the job.

Stocky, ruddy Bertrand H. Snell, 67, a congressman 24 years, chairman of the last two Republican national conventions, and author of many stinging anti-New Deal statements, will devote himself henceforth to his business interests in New York state.

Vote Plea To WPA Hit—This meant Investigator - Senator Sheppard had expressed "disapproval" of a speech Aubrey Williams, deputy WPA administrator, gave at a Workers' Alliance meeting. Williams, according to some accounts, had told the jobless: "Keep your friends in power."

Sheppard also looked into WPA wages in Kentucky and Oklahoma. And WPA Administrator Hopkins said two Kentucky strawbosses had been punished for playing politics.

No Censorship For Roosevelt—This meant the senate campaign investigators' chief did not intend to do anything about the President's oratory.

Mr. Roosevelt said last week that he felt he had a right to speak out in certain cases "as head of the Democratic party" and he appealed for clear-cut liberal-vs.-conservative battles this fall.

U. S. Speeds Money Outflow—This meant the $3,750,000,000 drive to improve business was on. PWA announced grants and loans totaling $340,215,258 in less than a week. WPA raised 500,000 southern workers' pay. In the fiscal year that started Friday Uncle Sam is expected to spend about $8,500,000,000 as compared to $7,600,000,000 in the last year.

Roosevelt Signs Wage Bill — This meant $11 pay for a 44-hour week will be the lowest legal wage, after Oct. 24, in many interstate industries. "Except perhaps for the social security act," the President thinks, "it is the most far-sighted program for the benefit of workers ever adopted."

Bank Rules Are Relaxed—This meant federal bank examiners now will okay some longer loans than heretofore and some investments, previously discouraged in small corporations' bonds not quoted on stock exchanges. Why? To encourage use of private funds in business.

QUOTES

Seishiro Itagaki, Japanese war minister: "It is necessary that the Japanese resolve to continue fighting at least 10 years."

Gen John Milton Claypool, Confederate veterans' commander, en route to Gettysburg: "Since the Lord put up with the Yankees all this time, I guess I can also for a few days."

Virginio Gayda, Mussolini's spokesman: "It is really the U. S. which lent a strong hand to push Italy and Germany on the road to economic autarchy and today is exerting itself to retard—one might even better say prevent — the return to economic collaboration."

000 is available for a monopoly inquiry.

And President Roosevelt expects the inquirers "to find a path through the jungle of contradictory theories about wise business practices."

"Mere political liberty," Montana's Sen. Burton K. Wheeler told Kiwanians at San Francisco this week, "becomes a meaningless, hollow phrase if a few corporations control the wealth of the nation, dictate its economic policies and high-handedly rule our lives."

Hearings probably will start in September. And "big steel" may be one of the first firms probed, the investigators indicated last week-end, on the heels of a slash in steel prices.

The Law Wins a Race.

A state trooper was slain last Sunday night near LaPorte, Ind., when he approached a car in which two South Dakotans were sitting. Then, in a wild flight, the two Dakota men kidnaped two deputy sheriffs and a farmer and his four-year-old son and stole two cars. Four states' officers closed in on them, and at Deselm, Ill., one of the outlaws was slain and the other caught. Police blamed them for many recent midwest crimes.

Murder by the River.

Charles Morris, 50, and John Paul Bathelt, 26, New York race track followers, used to go camping on the Connecticut river at South Hadley Falls, Mass. A year ago Morris disappeared from there, and the river recently washed up a body which had been wrapped in a blanket, tied with hay wire and encased in cement. Police tentatively identified it as that of Morris, and Bathelt was charged with murder.

Labor

New Orleans Excitement.

CIO truckmen called a strike against 10 New Orleans drayage firms last week. AFL refused to recognize the strike. Trouble followed. Three CIO members were shot and wounded. About 250 persons were arrested. Detective Chief John Grosch declared there was "no room in New Orleans for communists."

And a U. S. circuit court judge asked to stop police from interfering with CIO, called on city officials this week to present their side.

'Hands Off!'

The American Rolling Mill company, one of the leading independent steel firms, was accused of violating the labor law. One complaint was that it had dominated Ashland, Ky., municipal elections. Donald Richberg, former NRA head, appeared as counsel for the company when hearings opened this week at Catlettsburg, Ky., and demanded that NLRB "keep its hands off the ballot box." The election complaint was speedily erased.

Employers' Story.

For seven weeks now, Harlan County, Ky., coal operators and ex-officers have been on trial for thwarting unionization of miners. This week they answered charges of violence with charges of violence. One operator, for instance, testified that the United Mine Workers of America had tried to kill him and his kin.

Circus Folds.

The Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey circus and its 1,600 employes, out of step since the season started, returned this week to winter quarters. A 25 percent wage cut had caused a strike that stopped the show at Scranton, Pa.

People

McCormick Heir Falls.

John Medill McCormick, 21, son of Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms and heir to a Chicago newspaper fortune, and Richard Whitmer, 20, went mountain climbing last week in New Mexico.

Two days later Whitmer's body was found. Search for McCormick was continued by forest service workers, mountain climbers and Indians. Late Thursday the body was found on a lonely cliff below knife-like Sandia peak.

Astor-In-Law.

Francis O. French, 48, used to be a social figure at Newport, R. I., and his daughter married John Jacob Astor III. Cleaned out in the market in 1921, he drove a taxi, sold insurance and did some writing—including an expose of Newport society, which he says his millionaire son-in-law won't let him publish. Last summer he went into bankruptcy because he couldn't pay a $1.48 laundry bill. This week he applied for a WPA job.

Funeral Before Death.

A 73-year-old Tennessee farmer chose to have his "funeral" while alive, and did, last Sunday. He rode to it in a hearse, sat beside a coffin, heard a minister praise him, then shook hands with many of the 8,000 "mourners," and went on living. "I don't want another," he said. "I sure did enjoy it."

At Home

Gift From Sweden.

Where Swedes and Finns landed at Wilmington, Del., in 1638, a black granite shaft now holds aloft a replica of the colonial ship Kalmar Nyckel. A gift from Sweden's people, it was presented to America this week by Prince Bertil, 26, and accepted by President Roosevelt.

Prince Bertil's father, Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf, had become ill crossing the Atlantic. After dedicating, by telephone, a Swedish Memorial Museum at Philadelphia in connection with Pennsylvania's 300th anniversary celebration, the crown prince proceeded to a New York hospital.

Expedition Into Economics.
